Flood Crest Leaves Ravaged Lowlands in Wake

GEORGIA FARMS INUNDATED; TWO OTHER STATES HIT

3,000 to 5,000 Reported Homeless; Death List Stands at Six, All of Them in Alabama.

DAMAGE TO CROPS YET UNESTIMATED

Highways and Tracks Covered by Waters; Swamps Expected To End Rise of Rivers.

Devastating floods, which have ravaged wide valleys in southern Georgia, Alabama and northwest Florida, continued their destruction as they raced nearer the sea last night across the great coastal flats.

Brighter pictures were presented through most of the affected areas in Georgia and Alabama but acute conditions still prevailed in most of the Florida territory where more than 1,000 families were homeless and some 300 additional families ready to flee rising waters.

With the residents of Caryville, Fla., quartered at Bonifay, where food and shelter has been provided pending recession of waters which now course 12 feet deep in the little Choctawhatchee river town, the populace of Westville, across the river from Caryville, prepared to evacuate. It was feared that place might be engulfed since the floods were rising hourly.

It was believed that flood warnings generally had been obeyed in the valleys of the Ocmulgee and Oconee rivers in Georgia. The flood crest still was many miles from the sea but the regions adjacent to the rivers are very swampy and sparsely populated. Aside from damage to crops, highways and railways little real danger was seen for the area.

Thousands Homeless. Estimates of the homeless ranged from 3,000 to 5,000, but the death list stood at six, all of whom were Alabama negroes. Property damage still was unestimated, but declared to be several million dollars aside from losses to growing crops.

Stories of almost miraculous escapes came out of the flood area. A Louisville & Nashville passenger train missed disaster by minutes in northwest Florida when a section of roadbed washed out shortly after the train passed. Five persons were rescued after their shift overturned while they were attempting to cross the river between Westville and Caryville. An unidentified white man was taken from the swirling waters of Gum Swamp creek, in Telfair county, Georgia, and many persons were rescued from trees in the Caryville district. Every bridge and dam has been washed away in several counties of the three states. A huge dam on Little river in Tift county, Georgia, broke, releasing a great volume of water to swell the flooded little stream to a mile in width.

Century, Fla., saw 30 houses washed away and 50 houses were ruined at Milligan, Fla., from high waters. Brewton, Ala., fast emerging from the inundation which isolated the city

COCA-COLA STOCK SALE IS FAVORED

Majority of International Corporation Have Forwarded Their Stock to Company, Glenn Says.

The majority of the stockholders of Coca-Cola International who were sent letters inviting them to mail their stock to the Trust Company of Georgia for sale in block have responded by forwarding their stock to the company, Thomas K. Glenn, president of the trust company, said Wednesday night.

The time limit for filing of the stock expired at midnight Tuesday, and Wednesday was spent in compilation of the shares received, Mr. Glenn said. Mr. Glenn, with other stockholders of Coca-Cola International, issued the letter inviting the shareholders to send in their stock for sale in block, said Wednesday night that the number of shares sent in was most gratifying, and that it composed a majority of the stock.

Mr. Glenn would not announce the exact number received, but said that it formed a most substantial amount. The terms of the letter will be put into effect within the near future, he said.

At the time the letter of the trust company was issued, Lindsey Hopkins, who is known to have been a consistent buyer of Coca-Cola stock, issued a statement in which he urged the stockholders to couple their power of attorney with an upset price. Mr. Hopkins expressed confidence in the future of Coca-Cola stock, and said that from what he knew of the stockholders, they neither "need nor desire an executor to administer their estates or sell their stock at a blind price as long as they live and think for themselves."

Appraised Wednesday night of Mr. Glenn's statement, Mr. Hopkins said: "The Coca-Cola International corporation has not for some time owned the control of the Coca-Cola company." Beyond this, he refused to comment. The letter, signed by Mr. Glenn,

DEADLOCK LOOMS ON SCHOOL TRACT

Education Board Returns to Commission Recommendation To Purchase DeFoor Property.

Action of the Atlanta board of education Wednesday afternoon in special session in returning to the Atlanta bond commission a recommendation that a 14-acre tract of land, known as the DeFoor property, be purchased for $40,000, on which to establish a junior high school, will precipitate a deadlock between the two bodies, it was predicted following the meeting.

The board previously had recommended that the site be bought, but the bond commission, by a large vote, declined to ratify the board's action, holding that the plot was too large, the price too high and located too close to railway tracks.

Bennett Dies; To Be Buried At Arlington

Polar Flier, Victim of Pneumonia, To Rest Beside Peary.

Quebec, Quebec, April 25.—(United News).—Floyd Bennett, American aviator, whose name for so long has been associated with vivid achievements in the conquest of the air, gave up his life today in the cause for which he had fought.

The distinguished pilot, who flew with Commander Byrd on the aerial discovery of the north pole, succumbed in Jeffrey Hale hospital to pneumonia contracted as he was hurrying to the aid of fellow-aimers in distress.

The fraternity of the air, gathering in the frozen north to aid and honor the newcomers who had crossed the Atlantic in westward flight, lost an esteemed comrade. The growing list of martyrs in the progress of aviation gained a new name.

For Bennett died heroically as surely as though he had plunged to swift and painless death in full flight. He left a sick bed last Friday to take a plane to Greenland island, where Major Fitzmaurice and his German comrades, Baron Huenefeld and Captain Koehl, waited impatiently for assistance.

Twenty-four hours later, Bennett was desperately ill with pneumonia. He died at 10:45 a. m. today. Tonight the young hero's body, clad in the uniform he wore on his daring flights, lay in state in a funeral parlor while men and women of the ancient city of Quebec and fellow aimers, gathered on a mission

Former non-parking laws were repealed by action of council and absolute non-parking made effective in the area bounded on the north by Baker street, on the south by Trinity avenue, on the west by Spring street and on the east by Courtland street.

FARM AID DEBATE OPENS IN HOUSE

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—Turning to another of its major legislative problems, the house late today took up the Haugen farm relief bill, companion measure to the McNary bill already approved by the senate. Consideration of the measure was in development of prearranged plans of house leaders who some time ago scheduled the farm measure to follow the Mississippi flood control bill which was disposed of yesterday. The farm bills, aside from being alike in that they are designed as relief measures, have another point in common—the possibility of meeting with a presidential veto, because they include the equalization fee which President Coolidge has found objectionable. The house spent an hour discussing the advisability of giving the farm bill the right of way and then without a dissenting vote agreed to

THIN GRAY RANKS TO MARCH TODAY

Remnants of Once Mighty Host To Honor Departed Comrades in Memorial Day Rites.

The tramp of Confederate feet will echo through Atlanta's streets once again this afternoon, when the remnants of the mighty host that was the stout gray line march to Oakland cemetery to pay tribute to their fallen comrades.

Memorial day . . . time to stop and remember those gallant boys of the south who, especially within the past few years, have been dropping from the roll of living until there remains but a gaunt handful. It's time once again to call the roll of those true souls who have kept the last rendezvous and have joined Davis, Lee, Jackson and those others who have crossed the great divide.

And so, in fitting honor of the day, the Confederate veterans once again will form their ranks and parade through the heart of Atlanta to Oakland cemetery, where the Confederate monument keeps vigil over the graves of those who gave their lives to the cause of states' rights. The parade will move from Peachtree and Baker streets at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Ceremonies at Oakland cemetery, the parade will disband for a program of ceremonies arranged by the Atlanta Ladies' Memorial association, of which Mrs. William A. Wright is president. Colonel E. G. A. Pearce, marshal of the day, will preside at the ceremonies. There will be a prayer by the Rev. W. W. Menningham, the chaplain, and an address by Governor L. G. Hardman. The Georgia Power company band will furnish music. The principal songs will be: "Sweet By a Bye," and "God Be With You."

CREW OF BREMEN TO LEAVE ISLAND IN RELIEF PLANE

Hope To Hop for Murray Bay Today, Temporarily Abandoning Transocean Ship.

BY CHARLES J. V. MURPHY, Staff Correspondent of The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

(Copyright, 1928, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Greenly Island, April 25.—Unable to take off from the ice here today in the face of a howling northeaster the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen will be left here indefinitely while her crew fly back in the official relief plane of The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance to the receptions awaiting them.

Trouble with the Bremen's engine decided Captain Hermann Koehl, Major Fitzmaurice and Freiherr Gunther von Huenefeld to abandon their plane. The supplies brought in by the relief plane and the repairs made were not enough to enable the big Junkers machine to continue her flight to New York. The three-motored Alliance monoplane which will take the whole party out of their two weeks' isolation on this little island was also unable to make a start in the weather prevailing here all day. In addition to the gale, snow fell at intervals and meager reports reaching here by wireless told of snow and storms all along the route to Murray Bay, which will be the first stop on the outward journey.

However, the weather tonight appears to be breaking and we are all hoping to be able to take off for Murray Bay in the morning. Believed of the supplies brought in for the Bremen, the relief plane will be able to accommodate the trans-Atlantic fliers, but won't carry the mechanics who helped make the

YOUTH, 20, KILLED IN THEATER FIGHT

Frank E. Wilson, Stabbed in Leg, Dies From Loss of Blood; Boy Held for Murder.

Stabbed in the leg during a free-for-all fight in the rest room of a downtown theater Wednesday night, Frank E. Wilson, 20, of 3322 Pompano street, died shortly afterward at Grady hospital from loss of blood, resulting from a severed artery. Clifford Cowden, 14 years old, of 600 Stewart avenue, is being held by city police on a charge of murder.

Cowden, according to police, admitted participating in the fight, but vigorously denied the stabbing of Wilson. He said that he knew Wilson when he saw him, but did not know his name. Police Wednesday night were unable to learn any of the events leading up to the fight. Patrolman T. E. Brown was summoned by patrons to quell a disturbance when he arrived after other patrons were bringing Wilson out of the theater.

Wilson was rushed to Grady hospital, but he died before doctors could stop the flow of blood. His body was removed to the Ed Bond & Condon Undertaking establishment.

While he was being grided by Detective Lieutenant W. H. Andrews and Detectives H. W. Armstrong and J. M. Austin, Cowden is said to have admitted that he, his 16-year-old brother, John Cowden, stabbed Wilson and that the knife was handed to the elder Cowden by a boy named Pete Harrison, who is said to live on Hightower street.

Neither Harrison nor John Cowden had been apprehended by police at a late hour Wednesday night. Wilson is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Wilson; two sisters, Mrs. Edwin Taylor and Mrs. O. E. Preston, of Talula, Okla., and three brothers, Denver, Roy and Ralph Wilson.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Atlanta's 1928 opera season took a swing toward its zenith Wednesday afternoon at the auditorium, where two beautiful presentations were given, widely differing in type but blending into one of the most delightful programs of the year. The whimsical fairy fantasy, "Hansel and Gretel," a rare gem for children as well as adults and the staple favorite, "Pagliacci," sung by the greatest cast ever appearing in this opera in Atlanta, brought tremors and thrills to the big matinee crowd assembled.

Exquisite sung, with Editha Fleischer as "Hansel" and Queena Mario as "Gretel," this fairy tale of witches, gingerbread houses, enchantments and sorcery evoked gasps of pleasure from the crowds, particularly from the large crowd of children in attendance. Humperdinck's magic composition, with its wealth of humor and its rich and smoothly flowing melodies lulled and charmed with as much puissance as the wicked wand of the broom-riding witch.

And what a trio sang the old favorite "Pagliacci." Charming Lucrezia Bori, more beautiful than ever and in glorious voice, was "Nedda." The golden-throated Giovanni Martinelli, making his first appearance of the season as "Canio," the clown Lawrence Tibbett, with his robust

"It was Calvin Coolidge who declared: 'Little progress can be made by merely attempting to repress what is evil; our great hope lies in developing what is good.' SPINNER DENIES COTTON CHARGES

Washington, April 25.—(United News.)—Charges that cotton spinners were instrumental in the cotton price decline last fall which is claimed to have cost producers millions of dollars, were denied today before the senate cotton investigation committee by Walker D. Hines, former director general of railroads and new president of the cotton textile institute.

Hines said between 400 and 500 mills, operating most of the spindles in the country, belong to the institute, but that each mill carries on an independent business, forming its own policy.

Previous witnesses had charged the institute helped depress cotton prices in order to purchase more cheaply their raw materials.

Says Spinners Hurt.
Hines told the committee that spinners as well as producers suffered from the market fall, because the price their product commands is determined by the raw cotton market at the time the goods are offered for sale.

Members of the committee had also hinted at collusion between the spinners and the agriculture department's bureau of economics, which on September 15, last, issued a bearish market forecast. L. S. Tenney, the bureau chief, testified the report was not unusual and contained the hint of collusion was without foundation.

Quizzed Closely.

Hines was questioned closely regarding a statement he had issued in October, 1927, which it was said was intended to reduce prices. He denied this also, contending that it proposed curtailment of production to fit the demand as a general business principle, rather than as a guide for immediate policy.

The institute, Hines said, was formed to promote sales and find new uses for cotton goods. He said its interests were friendly, rather than hostile to cotton farmers.

BENNETT TO REST IN ARLINGTON GRAVE

similar to that for which Bennett was laid to rest, paid him full honors.

Flowers were heaped about the bier, gifts of some to whom Floyd Bennett had been but a phantom among many in a nation until he came here to become the old city's own hero.

Take Body to New York.
Quebec mourned Bennett as its own tonight, but tomorrow afternoon the flier's remains will be taken by special train to Montreal and thence to New York, where they will arrive at 8 a. m. Friday.

A man and a woman, comrades in their grief for the loss of a friend and a husband, mourned together at the bier tonight. Commander Richard Byrd, revered by the dead pilot as a chief, and Mrs. Bennett, the widow, were the two who were closest to Bennett at the end. It was for Byrd that Bennett called in his delirium, possibly envisioning some of their flights together.

Just as Bennett hurried to the relief of the crew of the weatherbound Bremen, so did another of the distinguished fraternity of the air brave forthright elements in a gallant dash to Floyd's aid.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh dropped down out of the snowstorm onto the plain of Abraham Tuesday night, bringing serum which might have saved Bennett's life. Lindbergh's swift flight from New York proved in vain, and this afternoon the youngster winged his way back to New York.

BENNETT TO REST AT ARLINGTON.

Washington, April 25.—(United News.)—Floyd Bennett will be buried at Arlington National cemetery Friday afternoon near the grave of another conqueror of the north pole—Admiral Robert E. Peary—the navy department announced late today.

Arrangements for Bennett's funeral were made by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Robinson in a telephone conversation with Commander Richard Byrd at Quebec.

Bennett's body will leave Quebec at 1:30 p. m. Thursday. It will arrive in New York at 7 a. m. Friday and be escorted by a police honor guard to the Pennsylvania station.

It will leave New York for Washington at 10 a. m. Friday and arrive here at 3 p. m., then be taken immediately to Arlington for burial. Full military honors will be accorded the dead flier, it was said.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Assistant Secretaries Robinson and Warner and high ranking officers of the navy are expected to attend the services.

As a warrant officer of the navy, Bennett is entitled to a guard of honor consisting of one platoon, but because of his distinguished services he will be paid the highest tribute possible by his comrades.

A special air detail is being arranged to fly overhead and shower flowers over the grave during the funeral services.

Orders were issued by Assistant Secretary Robinson to obtain a burial plot as near as possible to that of Admiral Peary. A vacant lot was located approximately 200 feet away but cemetery officials said it was possible a special lot would be laid out side by side with that of the first conqueror of the north pole.

"We thought it fitting that the two should rest near each other," Robinson said. "One conquered the pole on foot and the other by air."

Floyd Bennett enlisted in the navy as an aviation machinist at the outbreak of the war. He was discharged in 1919 as a chief machinist mate.

Bennett was awarded both the congressional medal of honor and the distinguished service medal for the north pole flight.

He was born in Warrensburg, N. Y., on October 25, 1890.

AT MITCHELL FIELD.
Mitchell Field, L. I., April 25.—(United News.)—Approximately 24 hours after he had taken off on his spectacular flight to save the life of Floyd Bennett, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed here late today after a 500-mile flight from Quebec.

The plane made the return trip in four hours and 46 minutes, a slow contrast to Tuesday's flight when it averaged more than 100 miles an hour to fly the distance in three hours and 35 minutes.

When Lindbergh, closely tucked in flying garments for the northern flight, stepped from his plane, he appeared deeply affected. Just before leaving Quebec, he had learned that his flight had been in vain—that Bennett had died.

"I knew it but I would not say anything about it," Lindbergh said. "Not until I can say would be sufficient."

"I presume you mean in praise of Bennett," someone asked.

"That's it exactly," he said.

Nothing could induce him to talk further, except that he hoped to be in New York to greet the crew of the weatherbound Bremen. To him the homecoming was the end of a flight which had spelled failure and the loss of Bennett, another of America's great aviators.

The short interview was abruptly closed and Lindbergh was left to himself.

POLAR JOURNEY TO HONOR BENNETT.

Quebec, Que., April 25.—(United News.)—The expedition to the north pole will be re-named the Floyd Bennett expedition, Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd announced here tonight.

Bennett was to have been second in command to Byrd on the south pole trip.

Byrd said that Bennett's death would not change his plans for the expedition.

COOLIDGE WIRES HIS SYMPATHY.
Washington, April 25.—(AP)—President Coolidge telegraphed today to Mrs. Floyd Bennett, his condolences on the death of her husband and praising "his noble and brave spirit."

DEBATE ON FARM AID BILL OPENS IN HOUSE

proceed with its consideration, with 12 hours set aside for general debate. A final vote is expected about next Wednesday.

Representative Williams, Illinois, republican, opened the discussion over making the bill the order of business. He said that the present Haugen bill differed from the farm bill vetoed last session by President Coolidge but that it retained the "essential" and "principle" of the former measure.

Williams said that the new bill would apply to all agricultural commodities instead of six "basic commodities," thus meeting one presidential objection. He added that with the white house position in view all restrictions regarding appointment of members for the proposed federal farm board had been eliminated, and that, for the same reason, a half-dozen other revisions had been made.

Representative Purnell, Indiana, making republican on the committee, contended that the bill is the "best farm measure" ever presented, and that "unless farm relief is enacted the very foundations of our government will be shattered."

DEADLOCK LOOMS ON SCHOOL TRACT

the board accept a tract which the bond commission has selected, Dr. R. M. Eubanks, former president of the board, was able to muster only two votes in addition to his own out of the 15 members of the board, and the previous trustees sponsoring the tract to the bond body along with an earnest request that it be approved.

W. C. Slate, of the second ward, and Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, of the sixth, joined Dr. Eubanks in voting against referring the DeFoor tract to the commission for action.

William A. Sutton, superintendent of schools; Raymond R. Ritchie, assistant superintendent in charge of business affairs; James W. Maddox and J. Allen Couch, school commissioner from the fifth ward, and Thomas Buckalew, member of the bond commission from the fifth ward, were among those sponsoring purchase of the DeFoor tract "as the logical and best in the vicinity."

Eubanks Offers Tract.
Dr. Eubanks offered the bond commission a tract for $12,000 and submitted tentative contracts, which he said principals were willing to sign, to lay a sewer in the property and grade it for $10,950, bringing the total to $22,950.

No grading or sewer is necessary on the DeFoor tract, according to those favoring that property. Members of the school administration department declared that some tracts of land "are expensive even if they are given to the city, because they require grading and expensive foundations." Both Mr. Sutton and Mr. Ritchie recommended the DeFoor tract and urged immediate settlement of the controversy in order that the administration department may make its plans for teachers and transfer of students to the new school this September.

The board passed with but one dissenting vote, that of Dr. Eubanks, a proposal by Mrs. Paul West, school commissioner of the 11th ward, to buy a tract of land for location of another junior high school in that section of the city. Members of the bond commission have indicated they will favor purchase of that site for $20,000, the option figure.

Members of the board were invited by Mrs. West to attend the cornerstone laying of the new Ormeau school on May 10.

Commissioner R. Warren, of the tenth ward, who has been confined to bed for the past several weeks with mumps, attended the session Wednesday afternoon.

"The Way to a Man's Heart"—

—Is Frequently Through a Rogers Market

That's one of the reasons why the Home Economic Class of Washington Seminary complimented one of the Rogers' markets by selecting it as a most suitable place for a practical lesson on meats—the quality—the various cuts—and other valuable information.

The picture above shows the class on a visit to Rogers market at 1158 Peachtree street, a few days ago. Ray Cleveland, the market manager, went fully into a practical demonstration, showing the young ladies how meat should be cut, the name of the various cuts, suggesting to them how roasts should be selected and cooked, and answering a hundred questions from the interested and interesting class of young ladies. The quality of the meat found in a Rogers market—the cleanliness of the market—were also matters of interest to the young lady students, and received much favorable comment from them.

Among the visitors were: Miss Virginia Surtees, teacher; Miss Lewellyn Baker, assistant teacher; Misses Bernia Warren, Lillie Mae Mitchell, Jane Tway, Linda Jernigan, Edith Fowler, Virginia Puckett, Julia Neill, Peggy Gude, Marion Peacock, Myrtis Adler, Eleanor Johnson, Edna Ruffy, Sarah Edmondson, Ruby Carter Adams, Virginia Cox, Julia Meador, Margaret Tate, Pearl Rafelman, Lena Swift, and Leah Baggs.

Hoover Backers Pleased By Ohio Election Returns

BY SAM W. SMALL.
Special Staff Correspondent.

Washington, April 26.—(Special.) The president-makers here are all fussed up today in consequence of the delegate designations in the state primaries and conventions of yesterday.

The Hoover administration people are jubilant especially over the result in Ohio, where they succeeded in winning a clear majority of the delegates from the Willis die-hards, who attempted to capitalize popular affection for the dead leader. Politics is a practical science and the voters of Ohio went over largely into the ranks of the living man who has more of a gambler's chance to be the dispensing president of the nation for four years ahead. The indications from other directions boost the Hoover cause and his managers now claim 240 cinched and a grand total in sight of 500, more than enough to nominate.

Governor Lowden has 171 certainly in the coop and his managers, counting the ultimate swing to him of the favorite son, or most of them, are confident that he can stop Hoover at the start and make the grade in the end.

But everyone, almost, is of the opinion that the fight is not yet won and must go on with increasing energy and maneuvering until Uncle Andy Mellon says the name of the man who is to carry the banner through the campaign.

HOOVER TAKES ISSUE WITH SMALL STORY.

On the fourteenth instant The Constitution published my brief appraisal of the personality and political qualifications of Secretary Hoover. At the end of the sketch I stated, from general information, that he favors the League of Nations and the world court, and is opposed to too drastic limitations of immigration. In a note to me Secretary Hoover says: "I am afraid the last paragraph is somewhat off on national issues," but he does not illuminate further; so maybe I set him down wrong.

LIEUT. COL. STOEKEY RETIRED FROM ARMY.

Lieutenant Colonel William P. Stoekey, of the corps of engineers of the army, who has been attached to the corps headquarters in Atlanta for many months, has been granted retirement after a career of distinguished service of 32 years. Colonel Stoekey was one of the commission with Major General Clem and ex-Governor Harris to survey, delineate and report upon the Kenesaw Mountain Memorial park project, and warmly recommended its creation and maintenance. Colonel Stoekey was born in Ohio late in 1875, appointed to the military academy at West Point and entered there in June, 1896, and was graduated in June, 1900. He was first assigned to the artillery, but subsequently transferred to the corps of engineers in 1902. During the world war he held the rank of colonel temporarily for more than a year and was promoted to the regular rank of lieutenant colonel on July 1, 1920. Colonel Stoekey is a popular officer, with many friends in Atlanta who will regret his departure into retirement.

FREE HIGHWAY SPAN IN GEORGIA O.K.'D.

President Coolidge yesterday approved the bill granting the consent of congress to the counties of Telfair and Coffee, in Georgia, to construct, maintain and operate a free highway bridge across the Ocmulgee river at or near the present Jacksonville ferry in said counties.

COLONEL FITZHUGH LEE SENT TO ATLANTA.

Colonel Fitzhugh Lee, of the cavalry, by amendment of the order of April 7, is directed to proceed to Fort McPherson, near Atlanta, and take station there.

Authority has been given to the director of the veterans' bureau to sell certain lands in Atlanta vicinity, belonging to the hospitalization properties, and use the proceeds for the improvement of base hospital No. 48 under the plans for its enlargement.

Fulton County Schools To Hold Field Day Friday

Elaborate plans are being perfected for the second annual picnic, field day and track meet which will be held Friday at Lakewood park by the entire Fulton county school system, it was announced Wednesday by R. L. Ramsey, supervisor of elementary schools in the county, who is in charge of the program.

More than 6,000 students will participate in the day's program, which will last from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time two handsome trophies and many prizes will be awarded the winners by Jere Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools. Mr. Ramsey stated that more than 1,000 students from the 35 schools in the system will actually compete in the 49 different events for the prizes.

A large trophy, given by The Constitution last year to the winning school in the various events and won by the Humphries school, will be awarded to the winning school of the smaller group this year, while another trophy will be offered for the winner of the larger group. This year the schools have been divided into two groups, the smaller consisting of 150 students and under and the larger group with schools of an enrollment of more than 150.

During the intermission of the field and track events the students are planned to have basket dinners on the terrace overlooking the lake, with the various parent-teacher associations in charge of arrangements.

The Fulton High School band of 35 pieces, under the leadership of R. L. Ramsey, will furnish music during the intermission between the track and field events.

There will be 18 events for the grammar schools, and each institution will be permitted to enter as many contestants as desired. The remaining 31 events will be among students of the three high schools.

Judges for first places will be W. F. Dykes, principal of Fulton High; and Jere A. Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools. Second place judges will be L. W. Hope and C. R. Brown, and third place judges will be M. C. Bishop and James T. McGee. A large number of teachers and students will assist the judges and other officials in staging the events.

In addition to Mr. Ramsey, the program committee consists of L. W. Hope, E. P. McIlwain, W. L. Speer, Paul D. West and J. E. White, all of Fulton High; M. C. Bishop and Professors Brown and Maddox, of College Park school; Miss Mary Long, of the Evan P. Howell school; Miss Lucile Wilson, of the Chatahochee school, and Mrs. O'Daffer, of the Temple Avenue school.

Oscar Mills, secretary and manager of the Southeastern Fair association, stated Wednesday afternoon that the grounds are being prepared for the annual visit of the Fulton county students. "We plan to give them the best that Lakewood has to offer, and more can be given this year than ever before, since more attractions are available," Mr. Mills said. Lakewood was officially opened to the public last Saturday for the annual summer season and will remain open until the close of the Southeastern fair, early in October.

ILLINOIS COMMERCE BODY CHAIRMAN RESIGNS HIS POST

Chicago, April 25.—(AP)—Upon the demand of Governor Len Small, David H. Jackson resigned today as chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, a post formerly held by Colonel Frank L. Smith, who twice was refused a seat in the United States senate and recently was defeated for the republican nomination for that post.

In announcing his resignation, Jackson stated that the governor and Samuel Insull, the public utilities executive who contributed heavily to Colonel Smith's first senatorial campaign—one of the conditions upon which the senate based its rebuff.

University of Georgia
Will Debate South
Carolina on Smith Question

Athens, Ga., April 25.—(Special.) A dual, simultaneous debate on the question of the advisability of the nomination of Governor Al Smith by the democratic national convention will be staged between reversed teams of the University of Georgia and the University of South Carolina, at Athens and Columbia, respectively.

The affirmative of the question, "Resolved, that the democratic party should nominate Al Smith, of New York for the presidency," will be defended at Athens against a negative South Carolina team, with John Candler, of Atlanta, and Rufus Jennings, of Dawson, representing Georgia. This will take place on the night of May 4, while on the same night L. K. Hay of Covington, and Joe Oliver, of Savannah, representing the University of Georgia, will defend the negative side of the same proposition at Columbia, S. C.

DEMOCRATS PLAN TAX CUT PROGRAM

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—Senate democrats framed a $325,000,000 tax reduction program today to place before the senate finance committee tomorrow when it decides on the rate schedules of the $250,000,000 bill passed by the house.

Holding a majority of 11 to 9, however, republicans were confident of voting through their plan for a cut in the estate tax, which would approximately approximate the total required by the administration.

The democratic program, which was worked out at a meeting of democratic members of the finance committee under the leadership of Senator Simmons, North Carolina, calls for a reduction in the corporation tax from 13-1/2 per cent to 11-1/2 per cent; repeal of the automobile tax; repeal of all admission levies except on prize-fight tickets; revision of the intermediate surtax rates; and retention of the house provision for a graduated scale of rates on corporations with income under $15,000.

The main point of difference between the republican and democratic plans lies in the corporation tax, which the republicans would cut by only 1 per cent instead of 2. This accounts for $82,000,000 of the difference between the two proposals.

There were indications that democrats would be left to their own decision on the proposed repeal of the inheritance tax, on which both parties are widely split, although the republican plan calls for its repeal.

Full details of the tax reduction program were not made public by Senator Simmons, pending a report on the exact cost of the program, but he estimated the total reduction to be provided would reach about $325,000,000, which is $125,000,000 more than Secretary Mellon said the treasury could stand.

Both the democratic and republican programs call for repeal of the automobile levy and for revision of the intermediate surtax rates.

JURY HOLDS FARMER IN TEACHER'S DEATH

Ridge Springs, S. C., April 25.—(AP) Finding that Miss Sarah Clark, 22, Allet county school teacher, was shot to death by J. H. Baker, 35-year-old farmer, of near her home community, a coroner's jury today ordered Baker held for trial on a charge of murder.

Solicitor T. C. Callison, of Lexington, who examined the witnesses at the inquest here, announced that he expected to call the case at the term of sessions court beginning the fourth Monday in June at Saluda.

All efforts to obtain bail for Baker, who was removed to the state prison at Columbia for safe-keeping shortly after Miss Clark died at an Augusta hospital Monday, will be opposed, the solicitor declared.

Two bullets from a heavy caliber pistol were fired into Miss Clark's body early Sunday morning after she was removed from a social to the home of J. O. Jones, Ridge Springs, where she was spending the week-end with Miss Lucy Jones, seven with-nesses testified that they saw the shooting.

Mobley Speaks At Annual Meet Of Credit Unions

A. R. Mobley, superintendent of banks of Georgia, was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Georgia Credit Union League, Wednesday night at the Henry Grady hotel of the Credit Union League of Georgia. George M. Gentry, president of the league, presided.

In addition to Mr. Mobley's talk, the election of 15 men to the board of directors featured the occasion. The new members of the board are George M. Gentry, S. F. Sumner, G. Johnston, J. T. Collins, J. M. Rosworth, Ed L. King, J. W. Webster, T. R. Backman, W. T. Tucker, H. A. Dunn, R. H. Manley, Jr., D. Y. Knight, O. R. McGee, Paul Chapman and L. F. Waldrop.

An afternoon session was held Wednesday at the chamber of commerce from 2 to 5 o'clock and was featured by a lengthy business session with M. Gentry in charge. Twenty-one credit unions of Atlanta and one of Rome were represented at the meeting.

The annual report of the league showed that 12 new chapters have been granted this year and that five more are pending in Secretary of State George Carswell's office. During 1925, 1926 and 1927 15 chapters were issued, it was reported.

KELVINATOR BRANCH TO BE AWARDED PRIZE

R. E. Densmore, director of branch and distributor for the Kelvinator Sales corporation, of Detroit, will visit Atlanta today and Friday to inspect the local Kelvinator branch and award it a $500 cash prize on its March sales record. During that month the Atlanta branch was second in the United States in percentage of quota obtained.

Thomas O. Hallock is district manager of the local Kelvinator branch, which has jurisdiction over Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Florida.

The most intensely dramatic of the operas sung so far was "Pagliacci."

"Sob Song" no less than three men broke down and cried. A woman was even heard to mutter huskily that it was "tough luck."

The golden voice of Gigli soaring in the night. Tense, quivering silence as if all the world were drinking in its sweetness.

The sound of an apartment window being raised. A voice: "Hey, you—"

THIS LITTLE ACCESSORY POPULAR WITH MEN.

As proof of the fact that this is an age of growing importance in the accessory line, the current opera season has brought to light a new vogue among men folks. Our staff artist secured this accompanying sketch of the toilet novelty, which is worn inconspicuously at the hip.

Describing the swanky little accessory, one of the male users declared it "the greatest comfort in my life; rapidly becoming indispensable."

CASUALTIES LIGHT ON OPERA FRONT.

An official communique from the Auditorium lists the casualties of grand opera so far as four dead performers and two policemen suffering from sleeping sickness.

"The season thus far is bloodless to an amazing degree," the communique pointed out, "but heavy fighting, followed by widespread and highly diverting slaughter is expected at 'Rigoletto' tonight."

HERE'S OUR ANNUAL GRAND OPERA PUZZLE.

Presented at a time when there is little thinking to be done in English, this teaser always meets with great favor.

Study it carefully. Note the courtly manner of the gentleman. The question is: "How did the man get inside the egg?"

All who guess the answer are requested not to tell it, as that would spoil the fun for everybody else.

The many social events being staged at Atlanta's clubs in connection with opera week are demonstrating the growing popularity of the "Varsity Drag," which is superseding the Black Bottom and other kindred ailments.

Goofy Swint, Tech's best-dressed super, Wednesday afternoon obligingly staged a "Varsity Drag" exhibition to be sketched for our readers. The tremendous physical effort required by the dance is shown by the strained expression on Goofy's face.

Rigoletto, the circus clown, has a daughter named Gilda who falls for the Duke of Camembert. She loves him but he doesn't know it and he loves her but she doesn't know it. "Rise," she says to him, "and let's go to the circus."

At any rate, to make the story short, they all love each other and hope the others love them but are not positive in their minds that they do. With tragedy thus brewing, they all— Interrupted. Battery run down.)

Police Looking For Missing Girl; Kidnaping Hinted

County police were asked late Wednesday afternoon to aid in the search for 4-year-old Anita Meason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Meason, of 1526 Montreat avenue, reported missing since early morning.

Mr. Meason expressed the fear his child had been kidnaped. He told county police that neighbors saw two men pick up a little girl about noon, driving with her toward Atlanta.

Desk Sergeant Ralph Carroll was told that a car answering the general description of the automobile had figured in an accident on Cascade drive shortly after noon.

The father, on his return from work at the government hospital No. 48 Wednesday afternoon, reported the matter to city and county police.

U. S. AND MEXICO AGREE ON SPECIAL CLAIMS COMMISSION

Washington, April 25.—(AP)—The United States and Mexico, the state department announces, have agreed to entrust to the permanent court of arbitration of The Hague the appointment of a neutral umpire to the Mexican-American general and special claims commissions.

The action follows procedure outlined in the claims convention signed in 1923 by the United States and Mexico wherein it is ordered that in the event the two governments cannot agree on a third member the subject shall be submitted to The Hague.

Dr. Rodrigo Octavio, Brazilian jurist, resigned last year as chairman of the special claims commission following his decision against American citizens suing for damages growing out of the destruction of property and taking of American lives at the Santa Isabel mines by revolutionists, Dr. C. Van Vollenhoven, Dutch jurist, resigned after several years' service as chairman of the general claims commission. Both chairmanships will be filled by The Hague appointee.

Memorial Day at Marietta

LITTLE BRASS CANNON TO BE UNVEILED To Be Two-Fold Occasion

Marietta, Ga., April 25.—(Special.)—Marietta is prepared for a Memorial day this year which will have a double significance.

The graves of the Confederate soldiers who lost their lives in the war between the states will be decorated, and solemn exercises, with Professor Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, delivering the oration.

Then, with virtually the whole town as well as hundreds of out-of-town visitors present, a little cannon, cast of brass, and after three score years back on the spot where it was seized, will be unveiled.

The unveiling of the six-pounder, which at one time stood on the campus of the old Georgia Military institute, which was destroyed by federal troops in 1864, will be done by 8-year-old Cordelia Gray Brumby, while seven of the one-time cadets at the institute will stand at attention.

Cadets Survive.
Two of those former cadets, Colonel H. H. Cabaniss, Atlanta, and Frank S. Lottin, Franklin, Ga., will give picturesque descriptions of the old school they attended before the civil war, while in the company of those few who still recall the days before it was destroyed will be Miss Lizzie E. York, of Marietta, who, as a girl, danced with the young cadets there.

Others to deliver speeches on the occasion of the return of the little cannon from Pennsylvania, where it was stationed in the national park at Gettysburg, will include Chief Justice

BEATON ANNOUNCES HOUSE CANDIDACY FROM WARE COUNTY.
Waycross, Ga., April 25.—Scott T. Beaton announced today that he will be a candidate to succeed himself as representative from Ware county in the Georgia legislature.

Mr. Beaton is a former mayor of Waycross and is now a member of the board of city tax assessors. During the last session of the legislature Mr. Beaton never missed a roll call and voted on every measure introduced.

Mr. Beaton states that he is running on his record in the past both as legislator and as a public official in other capacities. He is a prominent business man of Waycross and is now erecting a number of attractive brick business buildings in what is known as the Beaton block.

BACON COUNTY READY FOR PRIMARY, MAY 2

Waycross, Ga., April 25.—Twenty-six candidates have qualified for the Bacon county democratic primary, which is to be held Wednesday, May 2. They are:
Ordinary: A. F. Byrd, E. W. Warnock and J. S. Lee; clerk of the superior court, J. A. Pearson and G. W.

Richard B. Russell, of the state supreme court, who will deliver a historical sketch of the institute; and Colonel E. E. Davis, superintendent of the Gettysburg National park, who, with an old Union veteran, will describe how the cannon was captured and how it came to be placed in the famous park.

Taken by Sherman.
The cannon will be officially accepted on behalf of the people of Marietta by Mayor Gordon B. Gann, presiding over the ceremony; and a review of the exercises held last month at Gettysburg will be given by Captain Fred Morris.

The history of the little brass gun is colorful. It was taken as a memento by Sherman's troops during their devastating march through Georgia in 1864. It has counter parts on the grounds of the state capital where two "twins" of its mold face Hunter street. It will be unveiled Thursday on the exact spot that once was its birth on the campus of the Georgia Military institute, now the property of the Marietta Golf club.

At the same time the cannon is unveiled, little Cordelia Brumby will unveil a bronze tablet mounted on a granite boulder, on which the cannon will have been placed; and as the flag of the once vaunted Confederacy is unfurled a detachment of the Marietta Guards will fire a salute.

After the unveiling exercises luncheon will be served by the ladies auxiliary of the golf club, during which the seven surviving cadets of the old institute will be guests of honor.

McClellan; sheriff, J. D. Thornton, C. H. Bennett, W. L. Johnson and John A. Tanner; superintendent of schools, T. J. Townsend and J. T. Altman; tax collector, J. J. Williams, J. C. Rigdon and J. M. Medders; tax receiver, A. M. Stewart, D. W. Taylor and M. T. Roughton; one way, L. W. Nelson; surgeon, J. W. Meaders; commissioners, J. W. Douglas, Walter Horton, J. R. Carter, O. L. Taylor, J. J. Meeks, Joseph Harrison and T. H. Bennett.

BILLFOLD, VALUABLE GOLD COINS STOLEN

The theft of a billfold containing $150 from J. L. Denson, of 31 First street, N. E., was reported to police Wednesday. Denson told officers that $50 of the money was in highly prized old gold coins.

The Camp Grocery company, at 1500 Beecher street, S. W., was entered Tuesday night, but the only thing missing was $1 in cash, according to a report to police.

R. F. D. Extension.

Waycross, Ga., April 25.—A wire was received by the United States States Senator William J. Harris indicating that rural free delivery route No. 4 will be extended six miles. The change becomes effective June 1.

Marietta Remembers

Marietta today will pay homage to the soldiers of the Confederacy with special exercises over the graves of the civil war dead and the unveiling of a little brass cannon captured by Sherman from the old Georgia Military institute. Upper left is little Miss Cordelia Gray Brumby, who will unveil the cannon which has been returned to Marietta by the state of Pennsylvania; at the upper right is Miss Lizzie E. York, who as a belle of the Old South danced with the chivalrous cadets of the famous war-time academy, pictured below, which was destroyed by northern troops in 1864.

MEMORIAL PEACE MOVE IS LAUNCHED

Possibility that differences between the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association on one side and the Venable family and the U. D. C. on the other might be amicably settled by a conference between representatives of the two parties was seen Wednesday afternoon following the annual meeting of the association.

Following decision of the association to authorize appointment of a conference committee, S. H. Venable, one of the owners of the mountain, indicated that he would do his part toward effecting a compromise, declaring that "I always have been willing to settle my differences with the association."

Haverty Institutes Move.
This new move on the part of the Stone Mountain body was instituted by J. J. Haverty, member of the executive committee and a life-long friend of Mr. Venable, who recently held a conference with him on the matter.

This conference, Mr. Venable said Wednesday afternoon, was arranged at the request of Mr. Haverty. At the annual meeting Wednesday, the latter said that he had initiated the effort for conciliation, and expressed the confident belief that Mr. Venable and his associates would gladly meet the association in conference with a view to ending the warfare, the continuance of which, in Mr. Haverty's opinion would hamper completion of the great memorial.

At the same time, it was decided to postpone election of directors, and the election of a president to succeed Hollins N. Randolph, who has announced his intention of retiring as head of the association. The nominating committee, headed by M. B. Wellborn, was given further time for its

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you eat food that digests properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. Lee R. Bridges, of 904 North Lee St., Valdosta, Ga., says: "Nothing I ate did me any good. I noted a big change before the first bottle of Tanlac was gone. After two more, my work was so much easier I could hardly believe it!"

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure, medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

Authorization of appointment of the conference committee and the result of an address made by Dr. Plate Durham in which he suggested that the existing differences be settled in order that the monument may be completed in the spirit of Lee, whose head now looks down from the scarp of the mountain.

Haverty Heads Committee.
Mr. Randolph said that Mr. Haverty would head the conference committee, and would be consulted in the selection of the other members of the committee. The full committee will be appointed after due deliberation, he stated.

Addressing the meeting on the invitation of Mr. Randolph, Dr. Durham said that he is confident that there can be a composition of the differences concerning Stone Mountain "in the face of a task so great and glorious. Stating that he accepted the invitation to speak because he believed that the differences should be smoothed out, Dr. Durham said that "it is other things fail, conference often succeeds." He said that he felt he could promise the association that a peace move he that body would be met with an equally generous response.

Progress already made on the memorial carving renders it impossible for any persons to doubt any longer the success of the project under Augustus Lukeman, the sculptor. Mr. Randolph said in his annual report to the association.

New Directors Asked.
"After mature deliberation, I recommend that you make some additions to your board of directors," the report sets out. "An element of our people have withheld their support heretofore because of a doubt they entertained as to the success of the project under the new sculptor. The progress now made renders it impossible for any person to doubt any longer."

"I recommend that you consider the advisability of adding some from among this number to your board of directors with a view to bringing about peace and harmony, in so far as your efforts may be able to accomplish that result. In addition to these I also would recommend the election to your board of directors of some of the outstanding citizens of our state who have not heretofore been actively connected with this great enterprise in that capacity."

The report shows that an audit of the association's books down to March 31, 1925, by the firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., has recently been completed and the report is now in process of being transcribed, and in a short time will be furnished to the public. The association sustained a loss of money of more than $500,000 and a loss in time of three years, on account of the destruction by the fire of the former sculptor, Borglum, of the models for the carving, the report cites.

The agent of this loss is clearly reflected in the audit. A suit is now pending against the former sculptor to recover the loss and damages caused by his acts."

Memorial Coins on Hand.
A total of a million Stone Mountain Memorial coins remain on hand, including 794 hand-minted, first-run, serially numbered coins, which "are very valuable, as evidenced by the fact that one of them sold for $600."

I should say with proper handling these special first-run coins should yield a revenue of at least $100 each," Mr. Randolph's report highly commends the achievement of Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, in raising more than $35,000 for the association through the sale of the memorial coins in New York. The report declared that Mayor Walker "stands today as the chief benefactor of the monument."

The principle of state ownership of the monument was firmly established, and undoubtedly will be carried into effect by appropriate legislation at the next session of the general assembly, through introduction of a bill at the last session to make Stone Mountain a state park, administered by a park commission. Mr. Randolph reported. Passage of the bill was prevented only by the congestion of the calendar during the closing days of the session, he said.

Differences Arise.
While the Stone Mountain memorial was conceived by the late Mrs. Helen Plane and enthusiastically supported and fostered by the Atlanta chapter of the U. D. C., strong differences of opinion arose between the original promoters and the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association, which was subsequently formed to push the proposition.

There also arose a clash between Sam H. Venable and the association, arising partly over the dismissal of Borglum, the original sculptor. Mr. Venable claimed his contract with the memorial association had not been fulfilled by the association in that the memorial cannot be completed in the scheduled time and recently made a new deed giving the mountain side to the Atlanta chapter of the U. D. C.

The 12-year period for the completion of the carving specified in the original deed by the Venable family expires Monday, it was stated Wednesday.

ORATORICAL CONTEST SLATED FOR FRIDAY

An oratorical contest, in which students from colleges in Georgia, Florida and Alabama will take part, will be held in the chapel of Oglethorpe university at 8 o'clock Friday night. The winner will go to Greenville, S. C., at a later date to compete in the southeastern regional contest.

Beverly Irwin will represent Oglethorpe in the contest and B. Dye will represent Emory university. Howard college, Mississippi college, Alabama State college for Women and Augusta Junior college will be the other colleges represented.

This will be the third time Irwin has contested in the oratorical event. Two years ago in his first appearance he received honorable mention. Last year he won the event and took second place in the regional contest. The speaker who beat him in the regional contest won first place in the national competition. Dye, of Emory, is a member of the Emory debating team and has taken part in a number of victorious debates.

The winner of the national contest, which will be held in Los Angeles, Calif., is given a prize of $1,500.

PAYNE COLLEGE ENDS TERM WITH EXERCISES

Cuthbert, Ga., April 25.—(Special.)—Payne college closed out with final exercises here today. Beginning on Monday and Tuesday nights of this week with two high-class dramas in the college auditorium, followed by the commencement exercises in Payne Chapel church Wednesday, 24 students received diplomas.

Large crowds from all sections of the state, including Alabama and Florida, witnessed the work done by the school on this occasion. Bishop W. D. Johnson, D. D., of the Texas diocese, associated with Bishop J. S. Flipper, D.D., chancellor of the university system, was present. Professor Thomas Jefferson Flanagan, Atlanta, delivered the annual address to the graduating class.

Dr. John H. Lewis, president of Morris Brown university, Atlanta, with brief remarks handed out diplomas to the graduates. Bishop Flipper, in closing remarks upon the duties of youth to meet life's challenge, brought the class to tears. President Davis is hopeful for a greater school work in the future.

Dr. J. A. Hendley will have the indorsement of his state at the general conference, Chicago, in May as candidate for bishopric for foreign fields.

Warner, Jagel, Cataldi's Pupils, Meet in Atlanta

Reviving memories of the period of study spent under the famous Signor Cataldi, Italian teacher of voice, Frederick Jagel, brilliant young American tenor, who sings the role of Polliane in "Norma" Friday night, and Byron Warner, widely known throughout the south as leader of Warner's Seven Aces, and who has studied for the past year under the noted maestro, formed an acquaintance Wednesday.

Warner, a former member of the Emory University Glee club, is spending several weeks in Atlanta, lured here by the season of grand opera. He has been studying in Milan, Italy, since early in 1925 until recently when he was called home to Shreveport, La., because of the serious illness of his mother, who has now completely recovered.

In Milan, Warner studied first under Signor Mandolini, teacher of Martinelli, but when Mandolini died, Warner became the pupil of Signor Cataldi, under whom Jagel studied. Warner, studying for grand opera, was within three weeks of his debut when he was called to the bedside of his mother. He plans to return to Europe this September and resume his studies, according to Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, director of the Glee club of Emory.

While at Emory, Warner was president of the Glee club and tenor soloist. He was graduated in 1922. The Glee club will hold its farewell concert on May 18, and will sail from New York in June for a summer in England, returning here in September.

Road Building Far Behind the Automobile

Millions now recognize the automobile as a necessity. It is no longer a luxury for the few. Sixty per cent of its use is for business.

Yet although the mileage of Concrete Roads and Streets has been steadily increasing, our highway system today lags far behind the automobile.

Such a condition not only seriously handicaps the progress of the automobile as a comfortable, profitable means of transportation, but also holds back commercial, industrial and agricultural advancement in practically every section of the country. It is costing taxpayers millions of dollars annually.

Highway building should be continued and enlarged upon.

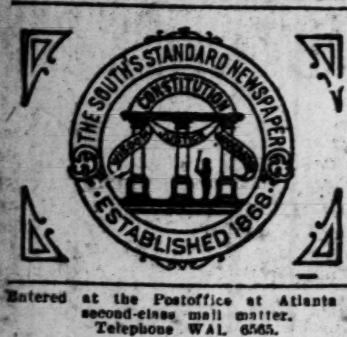

Your highway authorities are ready to carry on their share of this great public work. But they must have your support. Tell them you are ready to invest in more and wider Concrete Highways now.

IN VAIN, BUT HEROIC.

The record-breaking speed dash of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, in rushing by aeroplane, from New York to Quebec, pneumonia serum in the hope of saving the rapidly waning life of Floyd Bennett, a fellow flyer—whose life was sacrificed in the sacred cause of mercy—will stand out in aeronautic history as another of the great accomplishments of the daring aviator whom the world loves as no other hero of the air.

Battling snow, sleet, storm, sharp adverse winds, low visibility, and every discouraging element to one less intrepid, Colonel Lindbergh made the more than 500 mile dash in less than four hours.

The attempt was in vain but it was worth the trial.

The purpose was noble. The audacity of the lone trans-Atlantic flier was gripping.

Again he endeavored himself to the nation, and to civilization everywhere.

Colonel Lindbergh, if such a thing could be possible, is a greater and a more commanding figure by reason of his enthusiastic willingness to brave the perils of a northern dash, regardless of weather, in the hope of saving further service a brother of the craft.

The death of Floyd Bennett is peculiarly sad, and the nations of both continents are sorrowed by the news.

Courageous as a flier, and the companion of Commander Byrd in his flight to the north pole, the dashing, big-hearted Bennett had volunteered from a sick bed to pilot a relief plane to the stranded Bremen in the fastnesses of northern ice.

He was advised against it. His physicians, treating him at the time for bronchial influenza, told him of the perils of exposure. But he turned a deaf ear.

The call of mercy was louder than the call of physical prudence. He embarked, and was forced to leave the expedition at Quebec, and was hurried to a hospital.

Now he has paid with his life for the impulse of his great, loving heart.

The world will honor him through all ages as one of the great figures of philanthropic history.

And Colonel Lindbergh remains the incomparable and the let us hope—always unconquerable.

TRIED ONCE TOO OFTEN.

Frank Lockhart, internationally famous as a king of motor speed, tried once too often to break a world's record.

Like many others who have preceded him he sacrificed his life to gratify an ambition—an ambition to accomplish a feat that no other man at the controls of a speedster had accomplished before.

He had succeeded in breaking world's records before. He had had many narrow escapes from death. Fate had seemed to protect him.

But the story of the pitcher that was broken on its last pilgrimage to the well comes vividly to mind.

Frank Lockhart was young—just 25—daring, fearless, able, of good habits, and of an attractive personality.

He had hosts of friends who admired him not only for his intrepid courage, but for himself.

He held every American record from one to one hundred miles on circular courses, and the world's straight-away record for 91 1/2 cubic inch displacement motors. He won the latter record at the Dry Lake, Cal., course in 1927 with 164 miles an hour to his credit.

He sprang into fame when he won the Indianapolis speedway race.

He was practically unknown at the time.

Many stars of that Indianapolis classic have passed. Lockhart follows Dario Resta, who was killed at Brooklands speedway, England, in an effort to set a new mark on that course. Jimmy Murphy was killed at Syracuse on the mile dirt track there, while Gaston Chevrolet, a previous winner at Indianapolis, met death in a speedway race.

Not only the stars of the speedways, but thousands throughout the land are deeply grieved at the tragic ending of this daring young speed-driver, the greatest drawing card of them all.

CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL DAY.

Throughout several of the states of the south today loving tribute will be paid to the memory of the Confederate dead. It is Confederate Memorial day in Georgia and in several of the other southeastern states. Others will observe Memorial day on May 10.

While the ceremonies will be general throughout these states, with hosts of orators recounting the valor of the intrepid soldiers of the gray, in many cities of the north and west, where sons and daughters of the Confederate veterans are organized, there will also be memorial exercises, and in most of these—as in the south—veterans of the union army—the old boys who wore the blue in the '60s—will also participate.

In Georgia the day will be observed generally as a holiday.

In Atlanta the capitol, courthouse and city hall will be closed and the Confederate flag and Old Glory will float together to the breezes of spring.

It is one of the inspiring features of Memorial day—the frequent participation of members of the G. A. R.

It is equally true that in the annual Union veterans' memorial exercises veterans of the Confederacy just as frequently participate.

This nation is united. There is no longer a north and a south except as relating only to geographical lines.

The ranks of both of the lines of veterans are rapidly reducing each year. There will be no organized reunions of either, perhaps, in less than a decade.

The sons and daughters and the grandsons and the granddaughters will always keep green the memories—

But before the end of separate reunions there should be one great reunion of all the veterans of the war between the states. The loyalty and patriotism of all Americans, whether veterans of the blue or gray, or their descendants, demand that such a great, consolidated reunion shall be held before it is too late.

In the meantime the roll call of the dead is longer by far than that of the living.

We shall place remembrance flowers upon their resting places today.

Our thoughts will go back to the valor of the southern boys of 60-odd years ago who fought for what they believed to be their constitutional rights.

HOOPER PRIMARY VICTORIES.

The victory of Secretary Hoover in the Ohio primary Tuesday gives marked impetus to the pre-convention candidacy of the one man who is supposed to be the personal choice of President Coolidge for the republican nomination, and who avowedly represents the present administration's policies all along the line.

The eastern wing of the party is known to be strongly pro-Coolidge, and therefore—as the situation seems to stack up—strongly pro-Hoover.

The death of Senator Willis, of Ohio, after the close of entries in the preferential referendum, naturally gave the Hoover faction an advantage that it would not have had had the Ohio entry lived. Therefore, too much significance cannot be given to the Ohio results even though it does necessarily quicken encouragement in the secretary's headquarters.

There is no minimizing the strength of former Governor Lowden, of Illinois, in the mid-continent states, from the gulf to the Canadian border. The states along the Mississippi valley are not pleased at the president's flood-control policy, which policy Secretary Hoover indorses.

Therefore, even with Tuesday's victories, a clear-cut appraisal of the situation leaves the Kansas City nomination—though a majority of delegate-votes only is required—much in doubt, with Secretary Hoover undoubtedly in a present position of vantage.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Suicides

In Europe.

German statisticians have just published their findings on the number of suicides in Europe since the war.

It appears that 50,000 men and women have taken their own lives since the war.

Central Europe is the worst area. Hungary heads the list with 26 suicides to every 100,000 population.

Czechoslovakia comes second with 25; Germany third with 23 and Austria with 22 self-inflicted deaths to every 100,000 of her people, is fourth.

Then there is a sudden drop to 17, which is the figure for France, followed by Estonia with 15; Sweden and Denmark, each, with 14, and Finland with 11. Great Britain has less than half the suicides of Hungary, Germany or Austria. It is only 10 to every 100,000. Fascist Italy is still lower, with only eight, Holland with six; Norway, five; Spain, four, and at the very bottom of the list is Greece with only two. The German investigators report that they had no access to Russian figures.

Budapest's Answer.

The Budapest cattle show has just been held. It was a huge success.

The chief item on the market, however, was the large number of English pigs. The joke of the show arose from Samuel Goldwyn's message to Budapest that he wanted two new film stars of the genre of Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman.

At the ensuing contest 2,000 applicants of all classes presented themselves, including a peasant land owner in high boots and skin coat, who walked up to the judges and made the following declaration: "With all due honor, I announce to the gentlemen here assembled that I wish to be 'Ronald Kalmán'."

When the convulsed judges inquired why he proposed to change his occupation for that of a film actor, he replied: "Well, gentlemen, being up for the cattle show, I thought I might just as well make the most of my time. And then, you know, it would please my old woman to see my mug in the motion picture house in our village."

Too Much Kindness.

Viscountess Cave, when she was going on a long journey once made a bet, that, ill or well, she would keep a diary, however short, of the happenings of each day she was away from England. She won her bet. The diary habit continued through two subsequent journeys. She has welded together the result of her self-imposed task and published it in a book. The following are extracts from Lady Cave's diary in New York: October 4, I feel as if I were in a deep sleep. I am tired to the marrow of my bones. I did this evening, I sink back again into an overwhelming flood of well-meaning arms. One more day of October 5, New York. A capital city and gives you little in exchange. Individual Americans are delightful but collectively they are too much and too often. It is one long rush from morning till night, either to find pleasure or to make money, or to go one better than the other.

Sleep Well, Ye Brave MEMORIAL DAY—1928

In native land how splendid sleep The bravest of the brave While we today our vigils keep Round each patriot grave.

Eternal winds and dirges sing And rain laments knell; Dawnlight and dark forever spring Above our hallowed wall.

No more they heed the bugle's call Or thrill to cannonade; Silent the song in camp and hall And passed the last parade.

The bayonet is only rust While mouldering rests the spade; The charging steel has turned to dust And broken lies the blade.

Stilled now the thunder of the guns On crimsoned seas and fields; They cannot hear the muffled drums Or see the flag-draped shields.

All vain the trophied bronzes lift Tall shafts against the sky; A people's love their fondest gift And country's grief their sigh.

No need of sculptured marble's part Or brass laments knell; 'Shrined ever in memory's heart Time is their sentinel.

They want no manseulements there Nor cannon's minute boom; For deathless fame glides shining air Where glory guards their tomb.

They are not dead but only rest Serene on mother earth, And calmly wait upon her breast Christ's promise of rebirth.

Dear Fatherland, O cease thy tears And mourn no more thy sons! Down the myriad cycling years Their valiant story runs.

Lord God of Hosts! This prayer we ask: To keep our torch as bright; To hold their faith until the last With freedom's holy light.

—A Veteran of Two Wars.

Decoration Day

Tread softly upon this acre of green Where sleep our boys of sixty-one; And scatter wild flowers along the graves.

For here lies the rising sun; There are lies a loved whose mother was torn.

When he left in the days of yore, And there rests a man whose good wife mourned.

When he failed to come back from war.

Not many are left who suffered with them—A generation soon to close—Few aged women are here to shed tears.

As they place on each mound a rose; Gone are the mothers of our Lost Cause.

So bring flowers for them today And strew on the graves of their—Older boys.

Who died in the ranks of the gray.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

The Political Sooners Are Even Now Picking Presidential Cabinets.

Washington, April 25.—(Special.)

Some of the political sharpshooters at the capital, who are convinced that either Smith or Hoover will be the next president, are now turning their active intellects to framing alternative cabinets for those gentlemen.

That has been a favorite and fascinating pastime of politicians and newspapermen ever since a first cabinet was here to report political matters for The Constitution away back in January.

In some cases there were several fairly accurate guesses made, but in most instances the unofficial allotments failed to carry over.

In that year, 1877, in the case of President Hayes, practically every prophet was at sea and the only one that hit the mark was the general expectation that John Sherman would be made secretary of the treasury.

Hayes sprang two big surprises upon the country by choosing William M. Evans as secretary of state and David M. Key, of Tennessee, an ex-Confederate and democrat, to be postmaster general.

Scarcely any one, as I remember, picked more than one of his cabinet in advance for President Garfield, and that was James G. Blaine for secretary of state.

Helping Hands for Cleveland.

Perhaps the liveliest advance cabinet making was that done for Grover Cleveland, the first post-war democratic president. His election was really unexpected by the wisecracks of Washington political circles.

But when the returns showed that at about Blaine got 25 more popular votes than Cleveland, the latter had won 20 states with 210 electoral votes over Blaine's 18 states with 152 electoral votes only, speculation became rampant concerning the probable composition of the democratic cabinet.

The popular guess was Senator Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware, for secretary of state and proved to be correct. It is not until the next year that Dan Manning got the job of secretary of the treasury.

Most of the guesses for that job either Roosevelt, of New York, or Senator Randall, of Pennsylvania, former speaker of the house of representatives, but Manning got the best and filled it with distinction.

Another surprise was the appointment of Senator Garland, of Arkansas, to be attorney general, and it was almost expected at the choice of Senator William Q. Gresham, a republican, for secretary of state and the next novelty to that was the naming of Hoke Smith, of Georgia, to be secretary of the interior.

Some Chamberlain Cabinets.

Before the civil war the cabinets that underwent the most changes of personnel were those of President Jackson and President Tyler. Both served under stormy political conditions and found it necessary to make frequent changes of cabinet officers.

Jackson had four secretaries of state, five secretaries of the treasury, four secretaries of war, three attorneys general, two postmasters general, and three secretaries of the navy.

Tyler, who succeeded to the office after the death of John Tyler, had four secretaries of state, five secretaries of the treasury, four secretaries of war, three attorneys general, two postmasters general, and three secretaries of the navy.

sky as "Beppe" and "Silva," respectively. Conducted by Giuseppe Ram-boschek, never before was "Pagliacci" sung in Atlanta as it was Wednesday afternoon and the vast audience left as the evening shadows were falling after enjoying easily one of the most pleasing double bills ever offered by the Metropolitan anywhere.

Stars Enchant Audience.
Queenie Mario, an altogether delightful young person, and Editha Fleischer, of equal charm, skipped and danced their childish way through Humperdinck's fairy tale with such grace as to bring enchantment to all their hearers. In the first act where Miss Mario gave a perfect rendering of "Susie, Little Susie," in the second act, where Dorothea Flexer's "Sandman Song" was the outstanding number, and into the third act with Dorotha Mansk's weird and eerie "Witch's Dance" and the ever-alluring gingerbread house in the background, this little opera moved and came to an end in a perfect deluge of applause.

Likewise "Pagliacci," although tragic at its end, is dramatic and moving in theme and proved to be a happy complement for "Hansel and Gretel." The best tribute to be paid to the delicate artistry of the singers is that the numerous children drawn to the auditorium by the fairy tale apparently enjoyed the heavier opera to an equally great degree. They have called Bori "the incomparable," and in such roles as "Nedda" she is just that. What silvery sweetness there is in this marvelous voice. What grace and beauty in its possessor. How impudently and coquettishly she plays a role like "Nedda," and with what golden melody the notes flow from her throat. Once some one wrote a short story entitled "When Paganini Played." Equally apt would be a title, "When Bori Sings." Such a title would inspire the poets to supreme heights and would be the despair of the author who attempted in plain prose to tell of the beauty and splendor of this charming woman's singing. Bori's place as a soprano is at the very pinnacle of artistic heights and few will ever live to equal her. It is the belief of many who have heard the Metropolitan stars for a score of years. As she sang "Ye Birds With-out Number" the big audience sat in rapt ecstacy.

Martinielli Never Better.
"Pagliacci" is a happy vehicle for a tenor and what a tenor is Martinielli. Glorious were his "On With the Play" and "No, Punctilioso, No More" while his "Harlequin's Serenade" was superb. This great singer, after 16 years with the Metropolitan, always hailed as a master, seems to grow greater as the years roll on. Lawrence Tibbett, also making his first appearance of the year in Atlanta, rounded out this notable trio. His "Prologue," sung before the curtain, in which he explains what is to take place behind the scenes, was masterly. He was called back several times to bow before the curtain and only the rigid enforcement of the rule against singing encores prevented the audience from demanding a repetition of this wonderful number. Tibbett, too, is a greatly improved singer this year and this is an important statement because he was one of the outstanding artists of the season during last year's engagement.

As the performance ended Wednesday afternoon the steady opera patrons began to realize with keen appreciation just what a great series of operas the officers of the Atlanta Music Festival association have brought here this season. The opening number, "L'Africain," scored a tremendous hit. The light and bubbling "Barber of Seville" fitted into the program as a happy relief from its heavier predecessor. Then came the double bill Wednesday that established the first half of the season as one of the most pleasing ever heard here. Now comes the second half with the perennial favorite, "Rigoletto," the only Verdi opera on this year's program, scheduled for Thursday night. Then comes a quartet of compositions for Friday and Saturday that make up a season of opera in themselves. Friday afternoon comes "Die Walkure," the first of Wagner's famous trilogy. Friday night the revival of "Norma," by Bellini, an opera as full of melody as a music box. Saturday afternoon the volatile "Carmen" will smoke her cigarette and break several hearts, and on Saturday night the season will end with the plaintive sweet "La Boheme" of Puccini. One of the interesting features of the double bill Wednesday was the appearance of Miss Grace Moore in one of the boxes for the first time this season. The popular Tennessee girl was surrounded by a bevy of lo-

Famous Stars of Opera Aid In Success of "Costume Ball"

UNIQUE AND STRIKING COSTUMES WORN

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Grab! opera stars and Atlanta society leaders with guests and visitors from many southern cities, frolicked and gambled at the Piedmont Driving Club Wednesday night in the first big social affair tendered the singers under auspices of the Atlanta Opera club, with Harry M. Atkinson presiding in the role of master of ceremonies.

Singing and dancing were the orders of the night with the singing provided by the Metropolitan Opera company stars and the dancing furnished by the corps de ballet and by the guests in general after conclusion of the regular program mapped out for the occasion.

Guests at the "costume ball," as it was designated, enjoyed the unique distinction of having the world's greatest singers appear in special numbers for their delectation with music played by the Metropolitan Opera House orchestra, under special direction of Carlos Edwards.

The old song, "If I Only Had Fifty Million Dollars," Sousa's Band A-Play-ing at My Feet," came true for the four hundred-odd guests at the dance who had in the Metropolitan opera orchestra a musical organization even cal friends and admirers who extended her the cordial hand of welcome while many of her co-stars with the Metropolitan Opera company pushed forward to wish her success in her Atlanta debut Saturday afternoon, singing the role of "Micaela" in "Carmen."

Another all-star cast will be heard in "Rigoletto" Thursday night. Beniamino Gigli will sing "The Duke," and the versatile Giuseppe de Luca, baritone, will sing "Rigoletto." The part of the bandit "Sparafucile" will be sung by the capable Leon Mothier, while Marion Talley, the sensational soprano from Kansas City, will sing "Gilda." Miss Phyllis Falco will make her debut in Atlanta in "Rigoletto," singing the role of "The Countess." Others to sing in this opera are Millo Piro, Angela Bada, Paolo Anselmi, Minnie Egner, Vincenzo Resciglian and Paolina Tomassini. The corps de ballet also will appear in "Rigoletto" with Vincenzo Bellezza conducting the opera.

Opera Notes and Sidelights

BY PAUL STEVENSON

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
All the good things said about Grace Moore, the Tennessee girl star of the Metropolitan Opera company are not good enough. A lot more praise will be sung in her honor ere she departs from Atlanta, judging by the impression she made on her first appearance among her local friends at the Biltmore hotel Wednesday.

The stories of her beauty are not at all exaggerated but to the contrary one gets a sense of their inadequacy as he gazes at her personal charms. The tales of her gracious demeanor, her modesty and her keen appreciation of the favors bestowed on her by the public are easily understood after a conversation with her. It only remains for her now to bear out the reports of her marvelous singing and her close personal friends predict that she will more than rise to the occasion Saturday afternoon.

Miss Moore arrived late Tuesday night from Johnson City, Tenn., where she sang in concert Monday night. Her late arrival brought her face face with a barrage of questions of a delegation of newspaper reporters who talked to her so rapidly that she was rather flustered.

"I'll have to look at the newspapers today to see what I stated last night. I have absolutely no recollection of what I said," Miss Moore asserted. "That's nothing," a hard-boiled reporter replied. "There are lots of people around Atlanta who don't remember the next day what they said the night before."

Miss Moore, accompanied by her sister, Miss Emily Moore, and her secretary, Miss Helen McCabe, motored to Roswell Wednesday afternoon to see the dogwood trees and to see the old colonial homes of that quaint Georgia town. She returned in time to appear at the performance of "Pagliacci" at the auditorium.

Tuesday, Miss Moore will make her biggest Tennessee debut in Nashville, where she will be greeted by a committee headed by governor of Tennessee and the mayor of Nashville. Incidentally, her manager, Charles L. Wagner, that genial and gentlemanly personage, who has so many friends in Atlanta, will be present when she sings in her home state. A delegation from Ward-Belmont college, where Miss Moore attended school, also will appear on the reception committee.

Miss Emily Moore, incidentally, is equally charming from a point of pulchritude. She's a dainty and petite little girl who looks like she could go down to the university commencement and come back with a wagon load of frat pins and other trophies. Colonel R. L. Moore, father of Miss Moore, will come to Atlanta to hear her make her local debut.

Twelve Tampa singers literally have sung their way to the Atlanta engagement of the Metropolitan Opera company. They are now stopping at evening. They gladly responded to the calls of their auditors and were greeted with spontaneous applause at the end of their numbers.

The affair was spectacular and colorful and was a revelation to Atlanta citizens who have been attending various events of this kind given in honor of the visiting singers.

the Biltmore hotel and are getting all the thrills of the opera season usually found around the opera headquarters. The singers are known in Tampa as "The Thallians" and they presented several operettas and concerts to raise funds to defray their expenses to Atlanta. They have given performances which have been pronounced highly artistic by critics. This year the entire membership of the club is in Atlanta for opera.

Those here are C. C. Fleming, general director; Mrs. Esther Dunham, coloratura soprano; Mrs. W. D. Bailey, soprano; Mrs. C. R. Marney, soprano, and president of the club; Mrs. Gail Slichter, contralto; Mrs. David Safier, contralto; Phillip Clark, tenor; Harry Slichter, baritone; Charles Bretz, baritone; Floyd Eaddy, bass; Mrs. W. L. Price, accompanist, and Miss Netta Cery, accompanist. Arturo Moran, baritone, is the only member who did not make the trip to Atlanta.

Robert S. Parker, secretary of the Atlanta Music Festival association, stepped up to the entrance at the auditorium for "The Barber of Seville," reached in his pockets for tickets and found none. He had left them at home. The inflexible rule that every person must have tickets before being admitted was about to be enforced when several of his fellow officers came to the rescue and helped him "crash the gate."

In the next few years there will be an army of opera fans around Atlanta, judging from the enjoyment a thousand or two school children evinced at the performance of "Hansel and Gretel" Wednesday afternoon. The children have been playing the records in the schools and several have appeared in abridged versions of the opera. The kids knew more about the score Wednesday than did their mothers and fathers.

The wonderful staging of the operas at the auditorium has attracted widespread comment of a favorable nature. The settings are by Joseph Urban, and the stage crew of the Metropolitan has done wonders in building the massive scenes and in changing them in a limited space of time. The settings and effects have done as much as anything else to round out perfect performances.

CORINTH IS AGAIN HIT BY TREMBLORS

Athens, April 25.—(P)—Further violent earthquakes occurred in Corinth today and torrential rains beat upon the wretched homeless. Fierce winds blew down huts and tents where many of the destitute had found shelter, exposing them to the furious storm. Officers and men of British warships, which have arrived, are affording every possible assistance.

A shock at 4:04 a. m. practically destroyed the watering resort of Kalamaki at the eastern entrance to the Corinth canal.

A strange phenomenon was observed at Piraeus, the port of Athens, where the sea rose to a great height and then suddenly receded. Slight damage was caused to shipping.

A slight shock felt at Athens at 2:30 a. m. caused a certain amount of panic among the inhabitants. Other shocks were felt at Corinth last night. These were accompanied by a violent hail and rainstorm. Twenty houses collapsed at the small town of Amuri Lania, but no casualties were reported.

Shocks were also felt this morning at Lamia, at the head of the gulf of that name, and on the island of Poros. A British squadron arrived at Corinth and commenced to distribute food and blankets. The wife of the British minister intends to go to Corinth to aid in the relief work.

Denia Loverdos, Athenian banker who owns a villa at the stricken watering place of Loutraki, gave 200,000 drachmas ($2,000) for the sufferers in that district.

The Bulgarian government telegraphed its sympathy.

FLOODS LEAVE RAVAGED LOWLANDS

for two days, was taking stock of the heavy damage to property and highways.

Relief Forces Feed Families. About 800 families who have been fed by relief forces at Brewton pending recession of waters were preparing to return to their homes. More than 350 persons have been sleeping on the floor in the courthouse, which was one of the few dry places in the city.

Brewton's water supply, coming from artesian wells on high ground, luckily was not cut off, but the electric light and water pumping plants were put out of commission. More than $70,000 worth of naval stores were washed away, stores and their stocks ruined and great damage done to manufacturing plants.

Relief work generally has been taken in hand by local authorities and no appeals have been made for aid from any sector of the flooded area.

Little river, near Moultrie, Ga., normally a stream 50 yards wide, roared more than a mile wide through the lowlands today. Old inhabitants said the water was higher than in 60 years. It was fed by the drainage from rains, in addition to the breaking of a power dam in Tift county, which released millions of gallons of water.

Water covered the trestle of the Georgia & Florida railway on the Moultrie-Nashville branch to the depth of several feet and has washed out a fill for more than 300 yards.

Tifton reported that the Alapaha river, east of the city, was rising rapidly. The railway between that place and Moultrie still was cut but train service has been resumed between these and Albany.

Enormous damage has been reported from water standing on level land following downpours because the streams were too choked to drain it quickly. RAIL SERVICE RESUMED AT ALBANY.

Albany, Ga., April 25.—(P)—Rail service into and out of Albany, badly disrupted since Sunday, was nearly normal today. The Georgia, Southwestern & Gulf railroad to Cordele was still out of service, with no hope of resumption before Thursday.

The Central of Georgia had restored full service over all its lines except on the Lockhart division. Trains on this line could go no further than Columbus, Ala., where a 12-inch rainfall Sunday caused floods which washed away two power dams as well as a highway bridge.

The Atlantic Coast Line was operating traffic on the Thomasville division as normal this morning, and routing other through trains by that city. However, it was hoped that the Waycross line would be open in time for the southbound Plankings, reaching here at 1:40 o'clock this afternoon, to be routed by Waycross. Service on the Georgia Northern to Moultrie was restored to normal yesterday and the Seaboard Air Line to Columbus has not suffered any suspension of service.

Three highways south of Albany were impassable today, including the Albany-Thomasville paved highway, the Albany-Silvestor paved highway and the Albany-Newton road.

Flint river at this point was falling this morning, having receded nearly two feet from the high mark of 29.3 feet reached yesterday.

DR. JOHN E. WHITE SPEAKS AT REVIVAL ON "LOVE OF GOD"

Speaking before a capacity audience, Dr. John E. White, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Savannah, who is holding a two weeks' revival at the Gordon Street Baptist church, Wednesday night scored the so-called-Christian for his lack of love for God.

This revival, which began last Monday night, is attracting much attention in religious circles of Atlanta with services twice daily, except Saturday, at 10 o'clock each morning and 7:30 o'clock each night.

Fred Barnes, on the staff of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, is in charge of the musical program, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Arthur McCrary.

Dr. White will speak this morning on "The Simplicity of the Christian Religion." It was announced Wednesday night by Dr. W. H. Faust, pastor of the church.

James J. Goodrum, Charles T. Nunnally, J. Bulow Campbell, J. N. Goddard, Ernest Woodruff, W. C. Wardlaw and C. A. Wickersham, said that the signers felt that they should not offer their stock without giving to each stockholder the opportunity to sell at the same time. Three Generations

By WARWICK DEEPIER

Old John Pybus, formerly a bookbinder in London, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven when his son, Conrad, sees him there. He has been estranged from both his wife and his son since the beginning of the war, and they have lost track of him. Conrad has to tell his brother, Probyn, that he has seen their father. Probyn's son, Lance Pybus, had believed his grandfather dead. Probyn Pybus drives over alone to the inn at Castle Craven to see his father and offers to take care of him if he will give up his job. Old Pybus refuses. Lance goes secretly to see his grandfather without divulging his identity.

INSTALLMENT X.

A SURPRISING SYMPATHY.
And there Probyn Pybus had left it. He had never been a man to push an issue to immediate extremes. His nature was bland and conciliatory. Conciliation, allow a few suggestive persuasions to soak in. He said "All right, I'll take Wymman tomorrow," and felt that he had been tactful and kind and rather subtle.

So Lance stood brushing his hair. His father had ordered the car for nine and Lance was late for breakfast. Sir Probyn, with the morning paper propped against the coffee pot, was wondering whether his son would come downstairs and say "Morning, pater, I'd like to drive you up to town." While upstairs Lance was passing through one of those experiences that many appear to have at the moment. Being sensitive, he found the doing of certain things difficult, but also he had youth's ruthlessness and his scorn of compromise. He had begun to see his own people with a very disturbing clearness. His father was a far more vivid and comprehensible figure to Lance than the man he had seen. Youth sees things freshly with a cruel impartiality, wide awake to all the tricks of soul and body, and by his son's eyes the man he had seen was a caricature of himself. Lance had not asked to see him like that. It happened so. It was one of those inevitable discriminations that make life both humorous and tragic.

He went downstairs in flannels and met his father's oblique eyes looking up at him over the top of the paper. He helped himself to porridge while his father finished his second cup of coffee. They had wished each other good morning.

Probyn Pybus got up as his son sat down. He gulped his coffee. He folded up the paper with a crumpling testiness.

"Lot of mist this morning. Meet my board at eleven." Lance, with a spoon in the sugar bowl, supposed that the mist would lift very quickly. The day promised to be hot.

Sir Probyn, with a characteristic swerve of the right eye, allowed it to be seen that he had been scribbling. "You'll spend the morning scribbling—what?"

Lance looked out of the window. "Very likely."

His father went out of the room saying something about life being a serious business, and that every man, however young, should learn to face responsibilities, the kind of thing that thousands of fathers have said to thousands of sons.

Dolly Pybus looked down at the foreshortened Dutch garden. She saw Lance there in an old blue and white flannel trousers. He was standing by the cistern staring at it, his hands stuffed into his pockets. He had his back to the house. He appeared to be absorbed in watching the gold fish moving among the lily leaves and the yellow flowers floating on the water.

His figure had a stiffness. Lance puzzled her, baffled her. He was so "funny" at times. He had so little to say. He was always moaning off somewhere, or shutting himself up in his room. She could remember the time when she had boasted to her friends, "O, Lance tells me everything." He had been such a jolly kid, a boy whom you could take to Gunters and stuff with food, but now—

She was not a subtle person, and like many mothers when they discover the grown stranger in their sons she was both perplexed and resentful. Vaguely conscious of a sense of loss, she had attempted to grasp at that which was no longer given. She was fussy affectionate. She wanted to be able to feel and to say, "I and my boy are such pals." She took babyish liberties with his young dignity and was irritated when he treated her with a kind of dark reserve. He would look at her as though he were saying, "Mater, don't be such a fool!"

She was incapable of realizing that the jaded upon her son and that she was like a distracted child worrying child to a sensitive man. All that he knew by instinct she knew not at all. That adjective "funny" described him to her. Men were funny about this, or funny about that, or funny about women. But how exasperating, just when a something in her craved inarticulately for the youth in him.

But he was not young. She was the primrose, while he was Paris and London and Trinity and St. Francis of Assisi, and Raphael and Blake, and moonlight on Lake Leman, and Bernard Shaw. She was quite incapable of coping with him.

Child of impulse that she was, incapable of keeping back anything that came into her head, she hailed him. "Lance! Lance!"

He hated being shouted at, especially by his mother. She was still the common child of the back street, overblown and overgrown.

After an interval he turned and looked up at her window. His response was mute.

"Lance! I want to go into Aylesbury."

Which meant that she intended him to drive her into Aylesbury, and he was wanting to go to Castle Craven. All the urge of his swift, complex, and yet simple self was setting more and more toward Castle Craven.

That extraordinary old man! How had his grandfather contrived to become what he was, both a sage and a bearer of burdens? How wrong it seemed, and yet how right he made it! For Lance had been a swollen person in the Saracen yard, a sort of overripe human mulberry, spluttered at his grandfather. "Here, where's that spot-case? Damn it, man, I told you room No. 3!" And Lance's blood had felt on fire, until—in watching the Venerable—he had realized that the heat in him was natural, but unnecessary. His grandfather, looking with one straight blue glance into that squashed, mulberry face, had answered with resolute courtesy.

"One suitcase, sir, one kit-bag, one attache case. The suitcase is under the rug, sir. There is no need to damn anybody."

The swollen person had oozed more purple, and Lance, standing by the car and rattling the money in his trouser pockets, had seen the dignity of his grandfather cut like a knife into that human pulp.

Sally Summerscales, coming in to scrub the Venerable's kitchen floor for him, while the Venerable shaved himself before a little mirror hung by the garden window, made conversation through the doorway. Sally on her knees was the Sally of symbolism.

"Your young gentleman been to see you again, Mr. Pybus?"

No, he hadn't, not since last Tuesday, but Mr. Pybus was expecting him, while the Venerable shaved himself before a little mirror hung by the garden window, made conversation through the doorway. Sally on her knees was the Sally of symbolism.

ATLANTA BEAUTIES WILL GRACE THE OPERA THIS EVENING

FOLKSONGS FEATURE HUMPERDINCK'S "HANSEL AND GRETEL"

A trio of the most beautiful young women in Atlanta society who will attend the presentation of Verdi's tuneful and powerful opera, "Rigoletto," sung by the Metropolitan Opera company this evening at the auditorium. The charming group includes, from left to right, Mrs. George Marion Fletcher, Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, Jr., and Mrs. William McKenzie. Photographs by Rogers & Farmer.

Fairy Opera and "Pagliacci" Charm Matinee Audience

As spontaneous as child-play and as rich in exquisite melodies as the old German folksongs which color the entire production, Haensel and Gretel, the opera by Engelbert Humperdinck, appeared for the second time in the history of Metropolitan grand opera here Wednesday afternoon. Atlanta saw this amusing and refreshing performance in 1910, the first official season of opera, the production having been given on the bill with Pagliacci, the Italian opera by Ruggero Leoncavallo, which climaxed the program Wednesday afternoon.

From the opening scene of this fairy opera in the house of the broom-maker where Editha Fleischer as "Hansel" and Queena Mario, as "Gretel" sing and play "Susie, What Is the News?" to the final release from the witch, who affords Dorothea Manki scope for her talents as an actress and soloist of rare ability, the performance moved smoothly and with the grace and charm which refuses to be confined to the realm of childhood.

A delightful contrast in this irresistible opera is offered through the pathos of the parents' return, with harsh words and a jug of milk and the soothing, haunting beauty of the sandman scene in which Dorothea Flexer with her unforgettable melody "I Am the Sleep Fairy" created the calm and peace that is the inalienable right of the little child. The triumph over the habitual trickery of the witch in the closing scene was satisfyingly spirited. Charlotte as "The Dwarfman" and Pavel Ludikar as "Peter," completed the cast. Giuseppe Bamboschek was the able conductor.

Pagliacci, apparently a favorite of the Atlanta public, was presented for the sixth time to an admiring and enthusiastic audience. On this occasion, it seemed, not even the prologue was necessary to remind the brilliant audience that the players were truly human, so magnificently did that impeccable trio, Lucetta Bori, as Nedda; Giovanni Martinelli, as Canio; and Lawrence Tibbett as the captivating Tonio, play their parts. Reality and drama were strangely and artistically enacted in this dramatic opera in prologue and two acts, conducted by Giuseppe Bamboschek, Wednesday afternoon, which opened with the familiar little donkey cart with Nedda perched on the top, as with merriment and much festivity she made her appearance to an audience which never fails to appreciate the true artistry and command of this star of Metropolitan fame.

Alfio Tedesco, as Beppe, and George Cebanovsky, as Silvio, rounded out a cast which assured this opera a place in the hearts of the Atlanta public.

Verdi's "Rigoletto" To Charm Several Thousand Tonight

Familiar melodies will linger in the memory of several thousand opera lovers this evening when Verdi's notable opera "Rigoletto" will be presented by the Metropolitan Opera company for the sixth time in Atlanta. Marion Talley, the youthful American star of this internationally famous group of singers, appears in Atlanta for the third season and will be greeted by a brilliant-audience composed of representative southern society and patrons of the best in music. Singing the role of Gilda in which she made her sensational debut in New York in 1926, Miss Talley will share honors with the renowned Beniamino Gigli, who portrays the Duke of Mantua and the ardent lover of Gilda. DeLuca, whose inimitable acting as well as his splendid baritone voice will be a delight of the presentation. Delineating the difficult name role, the popular DeLuca will rise to great heights in the great denunciation scene in the second act when he discovers that his beloved daughter, Gilda, has been abducted by the duke's courtiers and made prisoner of the fickle and unscrupulous nobleman. The dramatic climax of the powerful opera will again give opportunity to DeLuca to reveal his powers of acting when he tears open a large sack to find the murdered body of his own daughter, whom he thought was that of the unprincipled duke. Duets and quartets with which the score of Rigoletto abounds makes this the most notable of all Verdi's operas and from the box office reservations promises to reach the apex in Atlanta's 1928 opera season.

Athletic Club Opera Dance Marked by Colorful Decorations

Holland's national flower was used in profusion in the decoration of the handsome ballroom of the Atlanta Athletic club Wednesday evening for this popular club's annual opera dinner-dance. Tulips of every variety and shade were arranged in abundance on the broad casings of the low windows outlining the ballroom. Pastel shades of these lovely flowers were arranged in low bowls gracing the center of individual tables surrounding the spacious room. Two large floor baskets overflowing with long-stemmed tulips in brilliant hues guarded the entrance to the room on either side. Garlands of smilax draped the magnificent crystal chandeliers which were covered in rose tulip shades.

During the evening musical numbers from the opera presented this week by the Metropolitan were played, followed by popular dance airs.

GOLDEN LYRES DECORATE DRIVING CLUB BALLROOM

Carnival Spirit Runs High At Famous Costume Ball

Eclipsing in brilliance and gaiety all other affairs making up the elaborate social program incident to the eighteenth season of grand opera was the gala carnival ball, held at the Piedmont Driving Club Wednesday evening and officially sponsored by the Music Festival association. Intense interest in the ball revolved around the presence of a large group of the Metropolitan company's foremost stars who were honor guests of the occasion. Harry M. Atkinson, president of the Music Festival association, and Mrs. Atkinson acted as official hosts for the evening, being assisted in receiving the guests by the directors of the association and their wives. Several hundred members of fashionable southern society assembled at 9 o'clock for dinner, the beautifully arranged program and the dancing which followed.

A scenic effect of great beauty was created in the handsome ballroom of the club with its decorations of tropical palms and myriads of gaily tinted spring flowers. Graceful golden lyres, suspended against the tall white columns ranging the length of the room, formed a charming decorative note of unusual beauty. A mammoth lyre, brilliantly illuminated in hundreds of golden lights and placed at the far end of the ballroom shed a blaze of glory upon the pretty scene, and the dainty Dresden shades of tulips, roses, sweet peas, calendulas and gladioli were used in lovely effect as central decorations on the tables.

Corps de Ballet

A delightful feature of the evening's entertainment was the exquisitely beautiful program rendered by the Metropolitan company's corps de ballet, accompanied by the Metropolitan orchestra in full strength. The first number rendered by the ballet was "Tarantelle," taken from Verdi's tuneful opera, "La Forza del Destino," which was followed by the ballet from the first act of Smetana's opera, "The Bartered Bride." Rita Delaportie, the dainty premiere danseuse of the Metropolitan corps, rendered as a solo dance "Chopiniana," receiving an ovation following its charming presentation.

Following the program the guests danced on the flower-bordered terrace which was brilliantly lighted with hundreds of colorful Japanese lanterns.

Artists' Table

At a large table, beautifully appointed with exquisite floral decorations, covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, Edward Ziegler, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson P. Dick, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kiser, the officers and directors of the Music Festival association, and many of the Metropolitan Opera stars, including Lucetta Bori, Florence Easton, Rosa Ponselle, Marion Talley, Grace Moore, Amelia Galli-Curci, Editha Fleischer, Queenie Mario, Julia Claussen, Dorothea Flexer, Dorothea Manski, Beniamino Gigli, Frederick Jagel, Giovanni Martinelli, Armand Tokaty, Mario Bastola, Antonio Scotti, Giuseppe de Luca, Lawrence Tibbett, Clarence Whitehill, Pavel Ludikar, Elio Pinza and Leon Rothler.

Mighty Chorus of Voices Features Program at Biltmore

The mid-week dinner-dance at the Biltmore Wednesday evening was an outstanding social event in the history of opera week, the program featuring an ensemble of 80 voices from the Metropolitan Opera company in tuneful harmony, conducted by Giulio Setti, and including soldiers march from "Faust," the grand march from "Tannhauser," opening chorus from "Cavalleria Rusticana," bell chorus from "Pagliacci," opening chorus from "Gioconda" and a special quartette number in completion of the humorous selection.

The spectators enjoyed a view of the members of the chorus wearing colorful costumes selected from the operas starring the program, and the harmonious blending of perfectly trained voices was due to the excellent training of Giulio Setti, chorus master, and his assistant, Fausto Cleve. After dinner the guests enjoyed dancing in the Georgian ballroom of the hotel until a late hour. The lovely decorations in the dining room and ballroom were tall baskets of red roses and palms.

Today We Honor Our Beloved "Old Soldiers"

Sixty-seven years ago, the Soldiers of the South became the Soldiers of the Confederacy. Their uniforms were gray, their spirits flaming. Four years later they became our Confederate Veterans.

Life has given them gray hair, which is the uniform we love for the old age we can revere. They are still our soldiers in gray. Our soldiers who—sixty-three years ago—laid down their swords to rescue a smoking land.

Two years later M. RICH & BROS. joined the new veterans in their new task. Shoulder to shoulder, we have stood with these first rebuilders of the South. Next week we celebrate our 61st birthday. Every one of the sixty-one years is charged with regard for the soldiers who knew how to be daring in war and resolute in peace.

FLANNEL FROCKS

A Half Holiday Brings a Half-Day Sale!

It seems that Atlanta has decided that the perfect frock for Spring is the Flannel Frock! Twice within a week we have reordered . . . and twice within a week we have sold completely out!

These new styles are—as were the others—all sleeveless. Moreover, the colors are the same pastel and high shades with plenty of white frocks. The flannel is the same soft woolly and not-too-warm fabric that appeared in the frocks that sold so fast last week.

But their necklines, the skirt plaiting, the polka dot ties, and other details, make them entirely different! So that this sale will appeal not only to those who came too late for good selection at last week's sales, but also to those who are so pleased with the frocks they bought then that they must have more!

URGE MOTOR TAG SALE BY SHERIFFS

Macon, Ga., April 25.—(AP)—Ben T. Watkins, Macon chief of police, was unanimously elected president of the Georgia State Sheriffs and Peace Officers' association for the ensuing year, and Savannah was chosen as the 1929 convention city at the closing session of the body today.

Chief Watkins, who was serving as vice president of the association, succeeds Sheriff C. O. Noble, of Cordle, Crisp county, as head of the state's peace officers. The convention ended this afternoon.

Besides Chief Watkins, other officers elected were Sheriff James L. Stiver, of Valdosta, Lowndes county, vice president, and H. C. Bradley, Fulton county special officer, elected secretary and treasurer.

A proposal to have sheriffs sell automobile license tags instead of owners having to send to Atlanta for their tags, was discussed at length. The convention favored a similar proposal last year and is expected to adopt resolution favoring the proposal again this year.

Carswell Favors Change.
George H. Carswell, secretary of state and motor vehicle commissioner, was a guest of the convention, but did not speak to the delegates on the tag question. When asked his opinion on that matter, he said if such a thing was possible and could be handled locally he would favor it.

"This proposition is strictly a business one, and will require a great amount of changes in the system as we are at present handling it," Secretary Carswell said. "However, if it will be handled as a business proposition, then I might say that I am in favor of the change, but I am frank to say that I cannot conceive at the moment how we can do this."

"First of all, as I see it, we must have the full cooperation of the automobile owners if we are to make such a change, and in this connection let me remind you that it is estimated that there are approximately 50,000 automobile owners in the state today who are escaping the purchase of tags for their cars by various methods. Such a change may prove the best way to handle the tags."

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, April 25.—(United News.)—Two American employees of a lumber company in the Pis Pis district who arrived here Monday confirmed that no Americans were killed in the raid on the La Luz mine by the forces of General Augusto Sandino. The two men were the last to leave the Pis Pis district and were present at the time of the raid and were the first to bring out news of the capture of George B. Marshall, of New York, assistant manager of the mine. They stated that none of the others had been captured.

The Story of Today's Opera "Rigoletto."

BY PAUL STEVENSON

There is a gay festival in progress in the palace of the Duke of Mantua as the curtain rises on the first act of Verdi's "Rigoletto," in four acts, which is the Thursday night offering of the Metropolitan Opera company. The Duke is a woman hunter like the libertine French king, Francis I, from whose pursuit no subject is safe, and his chief confederate in his amours is the hunchback jester, "Rigoletto." In the first scene the Duke relates the story of his conquest of a new beauty to Borsa, one of his retainers. After he has spoken of the charms of this unknown beauty whom he met in church, he turns to the Countess Ceprano and, taking her hand, leads her away. Rigoletto looks at the Count Ceprano, her husband, and openly rails at him. The Count is stirred with a desire for revenge. He hears from Marullo, a retainer, that the jester keeps a mistress concealed in a secluded house. The Count then arranges with some other gentlemen who have been the victims of the jester's barbs to obtain their revenge on Rigoletto by abducting this mistress. At this juncture an aged nobleman, Count Monterone, openly accuses the Duke of Mantua of bringing dishonor to his daughter. In frantic words he denounces the Duke and shocks the people in the palace. The Duke, enraged, orders that he be taken away to prison. As soldiers lead him away

Rigoletto follows him and mocks and jeers at the old nobleman. In despair the aged Count calls down upon the jester a father's curse.

Street Scene.

In act two the scene shifts to a street in front of Rigoletto's house. Near the door stands Sparafucile, a bandit who murders for money. As Rigoletto approaches his home Sparafucile accosts him, tells him of his business, and offers to serve him in case he has anyone he desires to kill. Rigoletto takes his name and turns to embrace his daughter, Gilda. The jester dearly loves his daughter and after embracing her he leaves the house. The girl reenters the house with her duenna, Giovanna. This duenna is in the pay of the Duke and of Giovanna the Duke is able to gain entrance to the home of the jester and he slips into the house, makes love to the girl and then reenters the street a group of men approach the house and as they draw near they meet Rigoletto.

These men are of the party formed by the Count Ceprano to kidnap the supposed mistress of the jester. They tell Rigoletto that they are on their way to abduct Ceprano's wife and he joins them. They blindfold the jester and he holds the ladder while the men enter his own home and take away his daughter, Gilda, to the palace. Rigoletto learns too late that he has been duped.

In the third act the Duke's rooms in the palace are shown and the Duke is seen mourning the disappearance of his latest mistress when the courtiers enter and tell him that Gilda has not disappeared but is in the palace. In a few minutes Gilda is brought to the Duke and the two retire to his private room. Rigoletto who has found out the truth, rushes in but is denied admission to the Duke's room. The door of the Duke's room opens and Gilda rushes out weeping. She falls in her father's arms and tells him she has been dishonored. Rigoletto then hears the aged Monterone repeating his curse as he passes by in the custody of soldiers. Monterone stops before a portrait of the Duke and declares that his curse has been in vain. Rigoletto then shouts that the curse has not been in vain. He retires with his daughter, plotting revenge.

The fourth act discloses a ruined tavern on the banks of the Mincio river, inhabited by Sparafucile as a den. Apparently the girl's visit to the Duke has increased her love for him. Just at this point she hears the Duke conversing with Maddalena, sister of Sparafucile. The Duke tells Maddalena the story of his latest love. Rigoletto has arranged with Sparafucile, the assassin, for the murder of the Duke. A storm arises and the Duke decides to spend the night at the den. During the night Maddalena begs the assassin to kill the Duke, but the assassin tells his sister that he has pledged himself to deliver a dead body and that unless some other person knocks at the door before midnight he must kill the Duke. Gilda overhears this conversation and decides to sacrifice herself for the Duke. She knocks on the door, is stabbed and her body is placed in a sack which is handed to Rigoletto on his return. He joyfully frings the sack to the river bank and is about to throw it in the river when he hears the Duke's voice shouting in merriment. He opens the sack and to his horror finds his daughter, who is just expiring and who sings one brief song before her death. The jester then cries out the father's curse and flings himself across her corpse.

Quantities of lubricating oil and gasoline, for aviation purposes, are being made ready for expected forced landings in that vicinity.

ALL SLAYING CHARGES REFUTED BY QUIGG

Miami, April 25.—(AP)—Police Chief H. Leslie Quigg, testifying today in his own defense against charges of murder in the death of H. Kier, negro prisoner killed two and a half years ago, denied every allegation the state has made against him and declared he first learned such a negro had existed when he was named in the case two months ago.

The chief went on the stand after two defense witnesses had testified they would not believe William Beecher, former city detective and the state's star witness, on oath, two others had made the same statement in regard to K. W. Pierce, another former detective who is the state's secondary reliance, and a fifth had declared Beecher had threatened to shoot Detective Tom Nazworth, another defendant, on sight.

Most of the chief's testimony consisted of answering "No" to questions which will H. Price, chief of defense counsel, quoted from the story told by Beecher and Pierce. Quigg declared his first knowledge that such a negro as Kier had existed came to him when Beecher and Pierce, testifying in habeas corpus hearings for the other defendants two months ago, named him in their stories. Quigg was indicted after the hearings.

The boys were found guilty of the murder December 12, last, of Arthur Haldebrand, 10, who was shot and killed while on a hunting trip.

Economic Stability Of Europe Laid To American Gold

Houston, Texas, April 25.—(AP)—Continued payment of German reparations and thereby the stabilization of economic Europe depends mainly upon ability to tap the reservoir of American gold, in the opinion of some speakers at the fifteenth annual foreign trade convention here today. Eugene P. Thomas, New York, president of the American Institute of International Trade, after covering many angles of the foreign trade outlook, said "The American investor provides money for these transfers (of reparations across the German frontier) and should he not continue to do so, similar transfers will become extremely difficult, if not impossible."

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

PETER USES PRICKLY PORKY.

BY Thornton W. Burgess.

Use your friends; that's what they're for. They'll quickly even up the score.

—Peter Rabbit.

A surprising thing happened over there on the edge of the Old Orchard. It was where the Old Orchard joins the Green Forest. Peter Rabbit, Bobby Coon and Prickly Porky the Foreman, had been listening to the stories. Scrapper the Kingbird has been telling about the Jungle and the people who lived there. Now, it isn't like Peter Rabbit, or like Bobby Coon, to be wholly careless. It isn't like either of them to fail to look around once in awhile. But this time they had forgotten that there might be danger.

It was the rustling of a leaf that caught Peter's attention. Turning, Peter was horrified to see Reddy Fox almost at his feet, jumping ghostly fast. Crafty Reddy had stolen up while the others had been listening to Scrapper.

Now, of course, Bobby Coon was not afraid of Reddy Fox. Neither was Prickly Porky. And Reddy Fox was not the least bit interested in either of them. He knew very well that Bobby Coon was altogether too big. Reddy is very careful not to bother any one he is not sure of whipping. Reddy can fight pretty well himself, and, of course, Reddy wasn't at all interested in Prickly Porky. No, indeed! Reddy long ago learned not to meddle with Prickly Porky. It was Peter Rabbit that Reddy was interested in, and if Peter hadn't turned just when he did, I suspect there would have been an end to all Peter Rabbit stories.

But Peter did turn. His first thought was to run. But he didn't run. Just in the nick of time he remembered that right there was no hiding place, and he knew that Reddy was too fast a runner to race with, unless there was a hiding place near. Peter's wits worked fast. He couldn't climb a tree. In fact, it looked as if there was nothing he could do. But there was, and Peter did it. He hopped right over Prickly Porky's back. Yes, sir, he hopped right over Prickly Porky's back. He got Prickly Porky between him and Reddy Fox. And then Peter kept close to Prickly Porky. He kept just as near him as he dared. You should have seen the face of Reddy Fox. He showed all his teeth in the ugliest kind of a snarl. He tried running around Prickly Porky. But Peter ran around also. Do what he would, Reddy couldn't get on the same side of Prickly Porky that Peter was on. Now, Prickly Porky is slow of foot. Every one knows that. But when Prickly Porky gets angry, he gets very angry, and he is likely to stay that way for some time. Prickly Porky was too slow of wit to realize what Peter was doing. He actually thought that Reddy Fox was pretending to attack him. Prickly Porky lifted the thousand little spears hidden in his coat. My, such a prickly looking sight as he was! And every time that Reddy came anywhere near him,

He hopped right over Prickly Porky's back.

Prickly Porky would lash at him with his tail. Meanwhile, Bobby Coon resented the presence of Reddy Fox. "You get away from here," growled Bobby. "We don't want you around." "I'll get away from here when I get ready, and not before," Reddy Fox replied. "Then it will be best for you to get ready pretty soon," declared Bobby, and moved over towards Reddy.

Now, Reddy couldn't try to catch Peter and at the same time keep watch of Bobby Coon, so finally he gave up. Peter grinned at him. "You're safe this time, Peter Rabbit," snarled Reddy, "but I'll get you yet. Just you watch out!" "I'll watch out," said Peter. (Copyright, 1928, for The Constitution.)

Improved Kotex

Shaped to fit
Softened to ease
Fashioned to protect

For sale everywhere at new low prices

GREATLY increased usage makes it possible to reduce the price of Kotex, permanently.

A million new women have adopted Kotex in the past few months. They came to it as a result of the 2 major improvements we recently announced.

Kotex is now form-fitting. It has no awkward bulkiness to mar smooth slender lines. It is far softer, fleecier, than ever before.

These two great improvements, coupled with Kotex' other exclusive features, bring perfect peace-of-mind—absolute comfort.

Kotex was the first water-soluble pad—hence disposal is no problem. It is the most absorbent—absorbing 16 times its own weight in moisture, and distributing it in such a manner as to obviate harsh, "waterproofed" backing.

Kotex deodorizes, another important point. And it is bought without hesitancy at any drug, department or dry goods store. Get a box at the new low price today.

American League.

BY ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

New York, April 25.—(P)—The A's seem to have it if southpaws are to cast the deciding vote in the American League pennant race.

The Yankees have as resourceful and reliable a pitcher as any in the business in Herb Pennock but the Athletics have two of them, Mose Gossage and Ray Kinsinger.

Grove and Walberg may turn the pennant scales if they continue to perform the way they did in trimming the Yankees' lead.

more work than the willowy star of the Yankee staff.

Grove refused to have as fast a ball as either league, with the possible exception of Dazzy Vance, but Walberg's is declared by many players to be even faster. Both have a world record of stuff but like most southpaws are slow off the mark.

Grove has been the steadier but Walberg may now have mastered the control that leads to greater consistency.

The higher phases of learning seem to be confined to the top and bottom of the pugilistic scale.

Crackers Break Even in Double-Header With Bears

Win First Game, 7-0 Jackets Fall Before Bama Nine, 4 to 3

Blethen Bests Welzer, Curtis on Mound in Opener; Friday Holds Locals in Night Cap.

BY BEN COTHMAN.

Occupants of the cellar, baseball men will tell you, aren't supposed to win series from leaders of the league. The local line is at present occupant of the Southern association cellar while Mobile, up until yesterday, was leading the league. The Bears are now tied with Little Rock for that honor, having lost two out of three to the Crackers.

Pels Are Next.

This afternoon the thoroughly dubbed Pelicans of New Orleans puffed from Birmingham, to be here until Saturday. The Crax lost four straight to New Orleans, in New Orleans, last week, which you will say was too bad. But then the Crackers lost four straight to Mobile, in Mobile, last week, and look what happened on the home lot.

So don't give up all hope. Today's struggle begins at 3 o'clock, as usual. Even the sight of Oldham, a pitcher, playing left field for Mobile, battling in clean-up position, going to the right hand side of the plate for a southpaw and vice versa, failed to startle the Crackers in the first game, as they made one hit count for two runs in the first inning and three hits for five runs in the seventh.

Mobile got exactly as many hits as did Atlanta—six. But the whole story for Mobile is told in the statement that there was never more than one hit per inning. And with Mr. Blethen zipping 'em in with ease and regularity, Mobile got a man as far as third base just once. A few got around to second, but none of them were men down when this happened, so no one became at all worried.

The Crackers saved three of their hits for the seventh inning and even then scattered them out, dumping them at strategic points to bring in the runs.

If two just one blow, a double from Walter Gilbert's bat, to score the runs for Atlanta in the first. Zoeller was hit by a pitched ball and scored on Gilbert's driving double to right. Billy Rhinel grounded out, Nazlesky to Nichols, and Gilbert legged it to third. Paul Strand brought the Cracker third sucker in with a long sacrifice fly to center.

Crackers in Front.

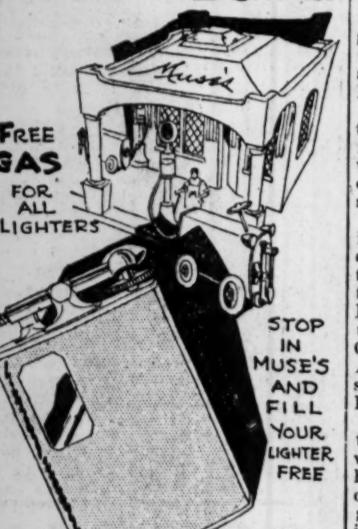

Really it was very nice and at the same time strange. No one had ever heard of Atlanta being out in front right in the first inning. But they were and continued that way.

Blethen kept charging right along with his good pitching, while Welzer, pitching for Mobile, saw the boys down for the next three innings with not a hit. Johnny Jones poked one through third base in the fifth for a single, but died on the paths. Rhinel singled in the next inning and also died on the bases.

Then came the seventh and a rally. Like most Cracker rallies it couldn't begin until two were down. Strand was thrown out by Nazlesky, Welzer walked and was forced at second by Jim Poole. Then Jones dropped a fluke double back of third base. Kimmick got under the ball, but it was a hard one to judge, and Jones' pop dropped at his feet. That sent Poole to third. Tom Angley walked and filled the bases.

Now was the time for another hit. But Blethen was at bat. Blethen did nothing but slam one through second base that scored Poole and Jones and left Angley on third. Zoeller walked to fill the bases again. Walter Gilbert came to bat. Here was the time for another hit. So Walter cracked one right on the nose to right field for two bases. Angley, Blethen and Zoeller scored and Walter

Two Home Runs Clouted in First of Four-Game Series.

University, Ala., April 25.—Alabama defeated Georgia Tech here Wednesday afternoon in the first of a four-game series. The score was 4 to 3, the winning counter coming in the final stanza when Campbell, who had singled, came home over Tech's third sacker missed Finnel's line drive.

The game was a pitching duel between Campbell, for the Homeles, and Carney, for the Techsters. Campbell though giving up nine soft-blow whiffed six men, while his rival gave up but seven hits and set but one man down on strikes.

Two Home Runs.

A circuit court was garnered off of each twister, the initial time this season that two home runs have been hit here in the same fray. Harry Moore registered one in the fifth off of Carney, while Waddy struck for another in the eighth.

The Crimsons' drew first blood when Campbell crossed the plate in the third, however, in the succeeding frame the Jackets counted when Parham, who had singled, advanced to third on a sacrifice and came home on a long fly hit by Mizell.

In the fifth Finnel hit safely down the third base line and Moore scored him a moment later with a terrific shot. For four bases, Campbell clouted the fourth, while Waddy, who had singled, advanced to third on a sacrifice and came home on a long fly hit by Mizell.

The stars of the local combine included Campbell, Sanford and Moore. The former in addition to pitching a neat brand of ball, clouted two home runs of four times to the bat and scored two runs. Sanford hit safely twice out of four trips and Moore got his second hit, clout of the season, Waddy, McCash and Smith were the Tech luminaries. Waddy was best with a single and home run out of four trips to the pan.

HOW GOOD, OR BAD, ARE THE HEAVYWEIGHTS?

The general opinion seems to be that the present heavyweight crop of challengers has a larger gonzola acreage than anything the past has known for some years.

This remains to be seen. It may be true. But Tunney was good enough to beat Dempsey twice, when the famous Mauler was under 32 years of age, so if Dempsey is rated the greatest of the heavyweights, as many have rated him, Tunney can't be all to the blimp.

If Tunney makes a mug out of Tom Heeneey then the entire heavyweight crop of challengers is bad, because Heeneey and the others are practically one and the same. Rickard might as well have put five names in a golf cap and pulled one name out.

If Heeneey can give Tunney a close, fairly even fight, then the others could do the same.

The main grievance against practically all of the challengers is that none of them has been interesting.

The most interesting of all pugilistic types is the heavy hitter. The next most interesting is the fast, saulting type, such as Harry Greb used to be. These two types seem to be passing out in the careful decision that goes with big money.

Cornell's Tough Break.

Cornell figured, after its winter shot at the intercollegiate this spring, until Stanford came along with exceptional strength where Cornell is also strong.

Which is to say that as things look now, Cornell is strong, but Stanford is stronger.

At Cambridge, Sanford is almost sure to win the shot at the intercollegiate, a 440, high jump, and possibly the discus, with a word to say about the hurdles.

The Pacific coast has practically taken charge of the intercollegiate for the last half dozen years—with just one exception—and there is only an outside chance that any eastern team can check the westerners this year.

Sir: Not all college athletes are thick-skulled. The foremost of brothers, of Brown, are both on the dean's list and taking one of the stiffest courses that college offers. Yet both are on the intercollegiate team, and in the spring, Al plays Lacrosse while Harry throws the shot on the track team. Al, as leader of the Providence eleven, hopes to put Cornell back into the outfit next fall. F. J. P.

Another Dixie Gem.

Dear Sir: Another great baseball player is coming out of the south. Before the summer is over the fans will talk much of Eddie Morgan, the new find of the Cleveland Indians. An all-around star at Tulane, he has the ability to become one of the greatest baseball players of his time. In college he caught and played third, but the Indians are using him to fill in for the Cleveland Indians.

Dear Sir: On winter performances Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen and Mac Smith will be the favorites when the field goes to the post at Olympia fields in June. Farrell, with nine victories in the last ten months, probably will be ranked next to Jones in the wagers, and it's about time the Quaker Ridge fashion plate delivered. He seems to have gained the aggressiveness necessary to win in any line and Olympia fields may see him find the end of the trail. What do you say? SUNDOWN SLIM.

Any open tournament is largely a case of Farrell hitting one of his top streaks. When he does no one can travel faster. But these top streaks are none too easy to come in advance. Which is something most golfers can subscribe to with a valley of eyes.

HAWKEYE SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Nerve.

Auto racing, one of the most thrilling of all sports, has taken another life. This time Frank Lockhart, a sports hero whose name should be placed in the hall of fame, was the victim. Lockhart's name does not belong in the hall of fame because he set the speed record he was after but because he died trying. It seems like a needless sacrifice but that is a question not to be settled by this column or any other mortal, for that matter.

Lockhart died just as he lived—going at top speed behind the wheel of a mechanical demon. A few short weeks ago his car hit the water and he escaped with his life. And he went back to that same beach with that same car, to his death. That took colossal nerve.

"Dear Old Pal."

All the boxing fans may join in the chorus of "Dear Old Pal" for Pal Moran is coming to Atlanta to fight. He is coming to fight a southpaw named "Boots" Antley, of Mobile, Ala. And it is a fairly safe bet that "Pal" will be singing a song himself when the battle is over. The song is likely to be a dirge.

"Boots" has met Pal once and he has won one decision but at that time—just a few months ago—Moran was not convinced that the referee knew his blows.

There is usually some such "grudge" involved in all return matches but in this particular fight there is no move to "smoke things up." Moran is not crying about the decision nor is he boasting about what he will do to Antley but he is not satisfied that the Mobile lad is better. The fight Tuesday night at the auditorium will tell the tale. It should be Antley's story.

The main bout Tuesday night will not hold all interest for Atlanta fans who can remember only a few years when Benny Cline was at the top of his glory. Benny will be back in this card if a suitable opponent can be found for him. The Irish boy has been away from Atlanta for some time but he has been fighting in the southwest and is not out of condition. Benny is a crowd-pleaser always.

Some People.

It just seems that the poor Crackers can't even win a baseball game in peace. A member of the sporting gentry entered our office Wednesday and after seeing himself at the desk volunteered the information that the Bears gave that game to the Crackers Tuesday afternoon.

"It stands to reason," said he, "that such was the case. If the Bears had won there wouldn't have been a big crowd at the doubleheader and everybody would have lost by a Bear victory."

And probably the Bears staged the washout in Alabama to give the Crackers another day's rest before the initial encounter. Such a statement would be just as sensible as the above assertion.

Hunter Faces Bridges Today For J. C. Title

Victory in Finals Would Give Hunter Permanent Possession of Cup.

BY WHITNER CARY.

As these lines are being read over the sizzling bacon and crisp toast, L. R. Hunter, twice winner of the spring tournament of the junior chamber of commerce, will be striving with might and main over the Druid Hills course to make it three in a row and to take permanent possession of the handsome cup emblematic of golf sovereignty in the junior body. At the same time Russell Bridges will be doing all in his power to prevent the cup finding a final resting place on the Hunter mantlepiece.

These two splendid golfers reached the final round in the first junior tournament Wednesday morning. Hunter gained his final bracket by eliminating Forrest Fowler in a hotly contested match that ended 4-2 and Bridges got within striking distance of the championship by removing E. W. Gottenstrater in an exciting match that ended 3-2. All the finals in the other flights will be concluded Thursday morning and all will be played over the 18-hole route.

Steady Golf.

Hunter, who has displayed a very steady brand of golf during the entire tournament, continued to exhibit this equality against Fowler. His medal score for the round was 73 and he did not have a single three-putt green during the entire match. He won the first hole and from then on was never out of the hole. When the turn was reached he had increased his advantage to 3 up. Fowler also played a good brand of golf. His greatest fault was a tendency to hook a few of his drives.

Gottenstrater, who turned five down to Bridges, made a gallant rally on the final hole for a time threw a great scare into the eventual winner. He won the tenth, halved the twelfth and then proceeded to take the thirteenth and fourteenth. His cut Bridges' lead to only 2 up. Gottenstrater missed his drive on the sixteenth, however, and this error cost him the hole and match. Bridges shot a very consistent brand of golf during the entire round.

Dr. R. Everett and Fitzhugh Knox will play the battle in the first flight. The former disposed of J. L. Everett by the count of 1 up in 19 holes, while the latter won from J. W. Smith, 1 up.

Scribe Remains.

The newspaper profession got an even break. Dick Hawkins was defeated, 8-7, by E. S. Harman in a four-hole playoff. Morgan showed great saving the average by winning from J. G. Camp in a spectacular battle that went to the nineteenth green before the final putt was made. Morgan fighting ability when under severe pressure as at one time in the affair he was trailing Camp by the seemingly insurmountable margin of five holes.

FIRST FLIGHT. E. R. Everett defeated J. L. Everett, 1 up (19 holes). Fitzhugh Knox defeated J. W. Smith, 1 up.

SECOND FLIGHT. E. S. Harman defeated Dick Hawkins, 8-7 (20 holes). H. E. Link defeated M. M. Anderson, 1 up (20 holes).

THIRD FLIGHT. Billy Youngblood defeated Mitchell Benton, 2-1. C. F. Deiter defeated George W. Suggs, 1 up (19 holes).

FOURTH FLIGHT. J. H. Dobb defeated J. G. Camp, 1 up (19 holes). J. D. Satter defeated J. C. Norris, 7-5. Jonathan Woody defeated Duncan Peck, 2-1.

MISS COLLETT OFF TO PLAY IN ENGLAND

New York, April 25.—(AP)—More interested in a missing bag than in her chances of winning the British women's golf championship, Glenna Collett sailed for England today for the first time in the British women's event, starting May 14 at Hunstanton, Norfolk, England.

Miss Collett, who has held the American title twice, refused to hazard a guess as to her chances for success abroad but it was taken for granted that her sudden decision to make the voyage, reached last Saturday, was an indication of her confidence in her game.

As the ship sailed Miss Collett was in good spirits, her smile prompted perhaps by arrival of the missing luggage ten minutes before the boat sailed.

Maureen Orent, the New Jersey girl who was runner-up in the 1927 national women's tournament, was on the George Washington long enough to say "Goodbye and good luck." "I don't go on that ship," said Miss Orent, "but Glenna will win."

Miss Collett did not share her friend's enthusiasm and declared that she would not be disappointed if she failed to win.

Miss Collett has been playing great golf in the south in the last few months. Her 74 at St. Augustine, Fla., takes rank with the best women's performances in the United States.

Georgia Net, Lacrosse Teams Meet Jackets

Lacrosse Game Scheduled For 3:30 O'Clock on Grant Field; Tennis Meet at Piedmont.

BY ROGER PAGE.

Again Tech and Georgia! The fact that these two institutions are to meet on the athletic field is enough to warrant great expectations, to say nothing of the sort of game to be played.

The University of Georgia has sent two teams to Atlanta for clashes with the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets. One of these will meet the Jackets in lacrosse and the other in tennis.

Lacrosse is the game one likes to watch but not play, as the game is considered by many to be worse than football when it comes to roughness. And when two colleges such as Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia meet in such an affair a sure contest is on.

Back From Long Tour.

The Jacket lacrosse squad has just returned from a road trip through Virginia and Maryland, where the University of Virginia, the Naval Academy and the University of Maryland were played. On this trip much was learned by the Jackets, and in game with the Bulldogs this afternoon a new brand of lacrosse is expected.

Not so very much is known of the Bulldog outfit, as they have not played many games this season, but if any of the same men who played against the Tech team last year are on the squad the Jackets will have their hands full. The University of Georgia always has put out a good, fighting lacrosse team and this year they will probably not be an exception.

After the two games with the Bulldogs today and Friday, the Jackets will storm Fort Benning at Columbus Saturday. Already the Jackets have scored a double win over Uncle Sam's officers when they visited Grant field two weeks ago, and Dr. Crenshaw's men are anxious to make it a clean "sheet" by winning the third game.

This game in lacrosse is scheduled to start at 3:30 o'clock on Grant field.

Tennis Teams Meet.

The Bulldog tennis team will meet with Captain Merry's undefeated net men at Piedmont park at 2 o'clock. The Tech team was routed last year, returned from a trip into Tennessee, where the University of Tennessee was defeated and a scheduled match with Seawanhock was rained out. The tennis squad has scored wins over the Augusta Country club, Davidson college, the University of Alabama and Tennessee.

On April 28 the Tech team will journey to Gainesville, where the Gators of the University of Florida will be played. A week later, on May 5, the University of North Carolina will meet the Jackets here.

The last appearance of the Tech tennis squad will be at the Southern Conference tourney held at New Orleans on May 10, 11 and 12. The team, composed of Captain Merry, Gollin, Lewis, Cabaniss and Williams, should go good at this tournament.

Summer Shows.

Humbert Fugazy, Brooklyn promoter, will hold his summer boxing shows at Edgewood field, Brooklyn.

Olympic Fund.

New York, April 25.—(United News.)—The Boston Olympic committee leads the country in the drive to raise $500,000 to defray the expenses of the American athletes for the Olympic games at Amsterdam.

A check for $3,432.44 was received today by the treasurer from the Boston committee. Grand Rapids, Mich. was next with $3,000, and New Orleans third with $1,000.

BONDS IN RISK

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York, April 25.—(P)—Semi-speculative bonds were in risk demand again today, sympathizing with strength of related issues on the stock exchange. Mortgages of a strictly investment character, however, displayed considerable irregularity in reflection of continued uncertainty over the credit situation. Although time money quotations were unchanged, it was generally conceded that the probability of an increase in the New York re-discount rate either this week or next was not without basis.

Prompt subscription of the $500-

000,000 City of Copenhagen was indicated continuance of the firm demand for new issues.

The new St. Paul mortgages, which have been hanging over for three days

under profit-taking, started upward again, although most of the gains were lost before the close. Hudson and Manhattan income for reached a new high for the year, but dropped back a point and closed fractionally below

yesterday's price. Minneapolis and Louisville again reached a new maximum at 61 and Iowa Central at 48 1/2 for the first time this year.

Quiet continued to rule the industrial group with further recessions

among the tobacco issues. Lorillard reached a new point, Anconco

Copper and Andrus were a point or so higher. Selling of some of the

New York traction issues, which have been gaining steadily several weeks, was the principal development in the public utilities list.

Profit-taking caused recessions of a number of the Italian industrial obligations which reached new peaks yesterday. Otherwise the foreign department was without important changes.

Price changes and volume of trading in the United States government bills were small.

Newspaper Publishers Ask That Mailing Rates Be Cut

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Resolution asking favorable action by congress on a bill to adjust newspaper mailing rates was adopted today at the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The resolution, introduced by Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, said that since the enactment of the 1917 war revenue act, newspaper publishers have been forced to pay war taxes in the guise of increased rates, ranging from 50 to 900 per cent greater than pre-war costs.

A paragraph of the resolution mentioned a bill now pending in the senate reducing these "war" taxes to rates ranging from 50 to 500 per cent greater than pre-war rates.

The resolution declared that in event of favorable action by congress on the bill the association would cooperate with the postoffice department in the restoration of newspapers to the mails so that the government will not suffer any loss in revenue incident to a reduction in postage rates.

John Stewart Bryan, president of the association and publisher of the Richmond News Leader, in his address pointed to evidence of overproduction in the paper industry as a warning of dangers of price fluctuations.

"The situation in the market for white paper, our most important basic supply, gives rather tangible evidence of overproduction," he said.

"As consumers who are obliged to make long-time contracts with advertisers, it is a matter of grave importance to publishers that the supply of white paper be not exposed to the wide fluctuations of the economic consequences of which are fraught with the danger of the instability of the whole publishing industry."

The association expressed its sorrow in the death of Floyd Bennett, "a great aviator and a gallant hero."

Congratulations were extended to Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, on his approaching 50th anniversary as a publisher. A committee from the association will attend a celebration marking the anniversary on July 1 at Chattanooga, Tenn., Mr. Ochs' native city.

RECORD IS MADE FOR STOCK CARS BY STUDEBAKER

Washington, D. C., April 23.—(Special).—By traveling 5,000 miles in less than 4,800 consecutive minutes, the Studebaker "Dictator" has established a record for strictly stock automobiles pricing less than $1,400.

The record was set by a Studebaker "Dictator" driven by H. H. Smith, of the Atlantic City Speedway. The entire run was supervised by the contest board of the American Automobile Association in connection with the 1936 Studebaker "Dictator" tour.

After the test, the two Dictators, which each traveled 5,000 miles in less than that number of minutes, were checked by the A. A. A. technical committee and pronounced strictly stock models.

The first "Dictator" covered 5,000 miles in 79 hours, 11 minutes, maintaining an average speed of 63.138 miles an hour for the entire distance. The second "Dictator" averaged 61.312 miles an hour for the 5,000 miles, making the run in 81 hours, 32 minutes. No cars selling below $1,400 have ever equalled this record.

STATE EMPLOYEE STEPS
INTO PLANE PROPELLOR

Clarion, Ga., April 25.—(AP)—C. L. Stewart, an employee of the state highway department, was instantly killed today when he stepped into the propeller of a privately owned commercial airplane that has been hauling passengers for several days.

Mr. Stewart, who was a friend of F. L. Elmore, pilot of the airplane, assisted a young woman to her seat in the machine and climbed down to the ground again to assist her in stepping back into the revolving propeller he is said to have walked into the whirling blades, which struck him on the front part of the head and almost split his face in two. His left arm was also horribly mangled. He was killed instantly.

Elmore brought his plane here a few days ago. He was formerly from Hendersonville, N. C., and is an ex-serviceman. Stewart also was in the army and the men are said to have been acquaintances. Shortly after he arrived Elmore broke one of the propeller blades, and Stewart drove his car to America where a new blade was obtained. It was this blade which fatally injured him.

Mr. Stewart came here some time ago from Washington. He leaves a widow and three children. The body will be sent to Wrightsville today for interment.

Dyott's Party
Follows River
Into Jungles

BY COMMANDER GEORGE M. DYOTT.
(By Cable to The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Columbia, Brazil, April 25.—We have come this far on our journey into the wilderness to find the missing explorer, Colonel P. H. Fawcett, and are starting at once by launch for Cuyaba. There we strike out into the jungle with our hullock train. Our journey from Sao Paulo to the railroad was eventful. One coach caught fire, and we were derailed three times because heavy rains had undermined the tracks. But none of our party was injured. We would have been weeks getting here had it not been for the help of the Brazilian government.

The opinion prevails in Brazil that Fawcett has perished. It is contended that no man can survive in the forests more than eight months and Fawcett hasn't been heard from since May, 1925, but if we don't find Fawcett alive, we shall establish what happened to him and then press on to discover that lost city of antiquity he set out to find.

TO OPEN TAMAMI
TRAIL BY MOTORCADE

Miami, Fla., April 25.—(AP)—Commemorating the completion of a job that required 14 years of intermittent work and an outlay of approximately $80,000, the east and west coasts of Florida will join in a celebration here tomorrow when the first motorcade to cross the Tamiami Trail from Tampa arrives here.

The road has been open to traffic for several days, but the official opening ceremonies were built around the journey of the motorcade which left Tampa today.

Engineering difficulties comparable to those encountered in construction of the road seldom have been met on a single project. For the greater part of the distance of 119 miles across the state, the road was built through the heart of the Everglades, the last frontier on American soil. For many miles the road is the ridge of muck, sand, cypress rock or whatever happened to be the soil at hand thrown up by the dredge that dug the canal beside which it runs.

Wiley L. Moore
Pays Entry Fee
In City Primary

London, April 25.—(AP)—The steamship Mina was headed for the ice-bound waters off Greenland, Spitzbergen, to bring Captain Wiley L. Moore to Europe. The ship was ordered to approach as near Greenland as possible and then to bring Captain Moore and Carl E. Eidsen and the airplane in which they flew across unexplored polar regions.

The ship, owned by the Hordning Exploration company, was at Hordning, Norway, when sailing orders were received. It was expected to reach the mouth of the River Hordning, on which Green Harbor is located, about Saturday. It was hoped that the fliers would be brought to Tromsø, Norway, early next week.

Indications were that as soon as possible Wiley Moore would begin active preparations for a flight to the south polar regions. He has already drawn up a tentative program for exploration in the unknown regions of the antarctic and hopes to start for there about the beginning of September.

A dispatch from Captain Wiley Moore has been received from the ship, the Mina, which is on her way to the south polar regions. He has already drawn up a tentative program for exploration in the unknown regions of the antarctic and hopes to start for there about the beginning of September.
